More Worry in Paris Two Hangings Thwarted 30,000 Leave Their Money What About China?

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.

INTERESTING STRIKE details from Paris: strikers in one big department store danced in the store all night, to accordion music. In another big store strikers slept in beds in the furniture department. A serious feature for the strikers themselves is the danger of a beer shortage, brewery workers walking out.

The gentleman who runs the guillotine did not go on strike and cut off two heads yesterday at dawn. Other activities may stop, but the machinery for killing men, and men to do the killing are always needed in "civilization."

Frenchmen say that Bolshevist propagandists have not been idle in Paris. The new Socialist government, alarmed by Communist strike demonstrations, with big stores closed, food supplies in danger and other difficulties, promises agitators that they shall have the sun and moon including as a start the 40-hour week.

The French nation is conservative but now, as in the revolution, a Paris mob, with energetic leaders, is able to rule the rest of France.

Conservative Frenchmen wish that their French-Russian alliance for "mutual protection" had been made to protect France against the Russian form of government. It may be a little late for that now, but if actual Communism came it would not last long. The French have had their share of autocratic rule in the past and autocratic rule is what Communism in action would give them; the average Frenchman is intelligent enough to know that.

Washington expects France to quit the gold standard and make the franc cheaper through "devaluation." The poor franc has already been devalued from about twenty cents to four cents, as though our dollars had been reduced from 100 cents to 20 cents. France will not relish a further reduction. The head of the Bank of France has been thrown out and a "good radical" put in his place. In other places than one radicalism plans to show what it can do.

Interesting news from Detroit where three boys from nine to fourteen, were found disabling prisoners, in a barn, two other boys, nine and eleven, and bringing to hang them, in imitation of the "Black Legion." The three boys were going to hang the two youngsters because they were "too high up in their classes."

This is in accordance with the modern ideas that production must be kept down and nobody must work "too hard."

It is not the idea of the real Russian Communists. They promote and praise those that do three or four or five times the work of an ordinary man. Clever Mr. Stalin. He gets the the work done.

Thirty thousand went yesterday to see the running of the Belmont stakes at a race track —gambling institution near New York. The thirty thousand took a certain amount of money with them, and brought back about two thirds of it. The rest stayed there with the professional gamblers. Perhaps not fewer than 20,000 idiots among the 30,000 undoubtedly believe that is is possible to win at race track gambling.

Some of the horses were missed, according to one expert turfman, fine young horses, broken down by premature racing early in the season, represent the gambler's idea of "improving the breed of fast horses."

However, with every $700 car able to run any $100,000 race horse to death in seven minutes "the breeding of fast horses" is no longer important.

What will happen in and what will happen to China if she starts a real, official war on Japan? Everybody knows what happened to Ethiopia after the war with Mussolini started. Some wise ones think the same may happen to China, if she gives Japan a plausible pretext for wholesale annexation.

How would Russia feel, what would she do with Japan taking over China? Stalin knows the East; he told the first ambassador he sent to Japan "Keep your eye open and your mouth shut." That was good advice.

With hostile Germany on the west, Russia would not like a war five thousand miles east of Moscow.

On the other hand Stalin might remember that the best time to kill a boa constrictor is after it has swallowed something bigger than itself, and the best time to fight Japan might be after she had swallowed half of China.

12 Alligators Flee From Zoo To Merrimack

Escape During Big Flood Revealed By Owner

Manchester, N. H., June 6—Discovery that at least 12 large alligators, and possibly a 13th, have escaped into the waters of the Merrimack river and that only one is known to be dead, was made today by the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Admission that 12 of his alligators, some large enough to sever a man's limb with a snap of their jaws, escaped his custody during the March floods was made by Leandre Carbonneau, West Manchester realtor, filling station owner and proprietor of the West Manchester Zoo.

But other persons, including Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harpin of Manchester road East Manchester, declared that at least one large alligator has been seen frequently since last summer in waters near the junction of the Merrimack and Piscataqua rivers.

Harpin said he was from his son, Larry, that he first heard of this alligator in the river.

LOOKED LIKE LOG

"Several of the boys," declared Harpin, senior, "including the Coogan boys of Second street, have accidentally come so near the big alligator that they have had barely time to make for shore when what they supposed was a log suddenly splashed from sun-warmed shallow water into their pool.

"After hearing my son's story, I did a little checking up of my own. From a man who formerly worked at the West Manchester Zoo I learned it was true that there was at least one large alligator in the river.

"I also learned that the former zoo attendant and several of his friends had repeatedly attempted to shoot the reptile, but had failed when their light .22-caliber rifle would not penetrate the 'gator's armor plate hide.

"The former zoo attendant tells me the reptile is one which got away from an open air cage at the zoo during the summer of 1935. He says it isnot at all surprising that the 'gator was able to survive the winter."

ALL DEAD, OWNER BELIEVES

Carbonneau expressed a different opinion, however, as to the ability of an alligator to survive the cold of northern waters.

"It is true," he said, "that 12 of our alligators escaped through windows of the flooded building in which we had confined them temporarily while the flood was in progress.

"Of the 12 we never found but one. That one was dead. I am of the opinion, however, that the reptiles would not live more than 24 hours in the sort of weather we have had here in the early spring.

"Why, even in the summertime we have never been able to keep any except the strongest 'gators outdoors."

As a result of the disclosure, an investigation was begun yesterday by Deputy Police Chief James O'Neil, who notified Nashua and Lowell authorities and the New Hampshire Fish and Game Commission.

2 Elder Dionnes Ill With Measles

Callander, Ont., June 6 (AP)—Measles has struck the Dionne family, but Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe believes there is little chance the quintuplets will catch the disease.

Two of the elder Dionne children —Rose, 8, and Ernest, 9—have a mild type of measles, the quintuplets' physician said tonight, but they live in the Dionne homestead, 100 yards from the nursery of the five babies, and the farm has been quarantined by district medical officers.

Blum Halts Paris Tide Of Strikes

Premier Threatens to Quit Deputies as Jewish Ancestry Is Attacked

Paris, June 6 (US)—Socialist Premier Leon Blum, moving speedily to stem a tidal wave of strikes engulfing more than 1,000,000 French workers, scored a smashing victory in the new Leftist chamber of deputies late tonight when the sweeping popular front program, granting all major demands of the strikers, was adopted by a vote of 384 to 210.

The overwhelming Parliamentary victory in this first test of strength since the popular front leftist coalition came to power climaxed a tumultuous and bitterly intense session during which Blum threatened to leave the Chamber because of a vehement attack on his Jewish ancestry.

Embracing legislation establishing the 40-hour work week and preliminary steps toward proible nationalization of the Bank of France and the nation's gigantic war industries, Blum's far-reaching program was adopted by the Chamber as ugly disorders for the first time since the strikes began broke out in the streets of Paris.

The tide of disorders kept the augmented police force force busy. In anti-semitic demonstrations groups of extremists, opposed to the new government, gathered to parade and shout:

"Down with the Jews!"

The ten-point popular front program of social and reformist legislation, overwhelmingly accepted by the Chamber, must now go to the French Senate for concurrence before it becomes law.

Dr. Ham Chosen Head of Holyoke

South Hadley, June 6—Roswell Gray Ham, professor of English at Yale, was today named president of Mt. Holyoke College to succeed Miss Mary E. Woolley. His term will commence next June.

Dr. Ham will become the third president of the institution and the first male president.

It Was Never SO BIG!

TODAY'S issue of The American Weekly, the magazine distributed to nearly 6,000,000 families throughout the United States with this and 16 other Hearst Sunday newspapers, contains the largest volume of advertising ever published in a single issue

In addition to many smaller advertisements, 12 of its 36 pages are full-page advertisements; each in four colors—the largest color advertisements appearing in any national magazine.

Manufacturers of nationally advertised products realize that the eyes of more than 20,000,000 people are focused upon the pages of The American Weekly every week—a tribute to the editorial genius that gives The American Weekly its widespread appeal.

NEUTRALITY OF WILSON CONDEMNED BY PROBERS

Senate Munitions Committee, in Surprise Report, Also Blames House of Morgan

Declares Latter's Financial Deals Swayed Administration in Favor of Allied Cause

Washington, June 6 (US)—Findings that the Wilson administration became "involved so inextricably" with banking and industrial firms that it became unneutral in favor of the Allies in the World War were made to the Senate today by its special munitions investigating committee.

Senator Nye (D.) of North Dakota suumitted the report which came as a thunderbolt to the dying Congress.

The committee's conclusion was that the Allies, chiefly Great Britain in league with J. P. Morgan & Co. and other big banking firms, planned a gigantic industrial boom here which led to unneutral acts in order to stave off a panic.

Congress was not kept "accurately informed" by the Wilson administration during the World War neutrality years—1914-17—the report said, although inferring that President Wilson during America's neutral years effected certain policies with the expectation this country eventually would be drawn into war.

STRENGTHEN ACT

The committee recommended:

1—Loans and credit provisions of the 1936 Neutrality Act be strengthened "to prevent the expansion of large credits to belligerents in the form of acceptance and to prevent the flotation of long time bonds by foreign non-belligerents.

2—Congress should consider the "desirability" of limiting exportation of commodities other than medicines and hospital supplies to belligerents in normal amount exported to such nations during a "typical peace time period."

In adderation to the definition of ar and merchant men and, pending settlement by international agreement of the status of armed merchant men, the United States, during any war in which Congress should also give it is neutral, should refuse to extend clearance to armed mer-

Parker and Son Defy Detectives

Mount Holly, N. J., June 6 (INS)—Elton Parker, Sr., Burlington county chief of detectives, today defied four Brooklyn detectives to attempt to take him and his son, Ellis, Jr., to King's county to face indictments accusing them of being conspirators in the kidnaping of Paul Wendel, disbarred attorney, who "confessed" the Lindbergh murder.

The officers called at the elder Parker's office to ask him to bring his son from hiding and surrender him.

"I'm not going'to Brooklyn and neither is my son," Parker retorted. "Put that in your pipe and smoke it."

Parker said he was going to put a guard over his son when he returns "so you won't be able to touch him."

The discomforted detectives left, reportedly to seek a warrant for the removal of Parker's secretary, Mrs. Anna Bading, to Brooklyn to testify before the grand jury which recently indicted the two Parkers.

Philbin Wins 2nd Place; 'Robbery,' Charges Kelly; 'Stop Landon' Move Halted

Fight in Cleveland Now Narrows to Second Place

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Cleveland, O., June 6 (US)—Gov. Alfred M. Landon's irresistible band wagon gathered new momentum to smash the "Stop Landon" movement tonight while Republican leaders prepared for a battle royal to nominate the candidate for Vice-President of the United States.

Senator Vandenberg's abrupt decision to remain in the Senate immediately precipitated Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon into a favorable spot for the vice-presidential contest.

Campaign Manager John Hamilton declared in a public statement:

"Any good man who is a good Republican would be satisfactory to the Landon forces for vice-president."

By that statement, Hamilton repulsed all proposals for a coalition under which a Democrat would be chosen to run for second place with Landon.

Although Senator Steiwer was under tentative consideration of the Landon managers and his name was favorably on the lips of Republican delegates still streaming into the convention city, Hamilton's statement was intended to leave the field open for a vigorous battle that will stimulate excited interest in the national convention already packed with the prospects of dramatic thrills.

MAY NAME KNOX

A host of candidates were projected into the arena along with the possibility of sensational surprises in the contest created by Vandenberg's declaration to continue service in the Senate.

The situation resolved itself into these plans:

1—To "draft" Senator Vandenberg for vice-president by popular acclaim of the convention in the hope he would accept the nomination once the high honor is conferred upon him.

2—To nominate Colonel Frank Knox—making the national ticket Landon and Knox—further to unite the Republican forces in the agricultural and pivotal industrial areas of the West.

3—To study the effect of Senator Steiwer's keynote speech up-

The G. O. P. Platform

THE DAYS have passed when a political platform could be treated as a routine feature of a party convention.

The Democratic administration realizes this only too painfully as the Philadelphia convention approaches, and the task looms before the Roosevelt managers of glossing their breaches and betrayal of the pledges contained in the Democratic platform of 1932.

The Republican platform builders should find their task a simple one. "THEIR PLATFORM, FROM BEGINNING TO END, SHOULD THROB AND VIBRATE WITH GENUINE AMERICANISM.

There should be no quibble or compromise, no lack either of vigor or sincerity in the statement of its Americanism.

It must voice the fervent prayer, welling up throughout the country—"that this nation," as Lincoln said, "under God, shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

NOT regimentation, NOT bureaucracy, NOT a centralized tyranny in Washington invading the life and industry of every community in the land, not the totalitarian state of the President's Communist advisers, nor the authoritarian state of the Socialist crackpots—but A GOVERNMENT IN CONFORMITY WITH THE WILL OF THE PEOPLE AS EXPRESSED IN THE CONSTITUTION, and IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE TRADITIONS OF AMERICAN LIBERTY AND SELF RULE.

The Republican foreign policy should be frankly and courageously the historic policy of the country from the time of Washington—who professed his "ardent desire to keep the United States free from political connections with EVERY country to see them independent ALL and under the influence of NONE.

"In a word," said he, "I want an AMERICAN character, that the powers of Europe may be convinced we act FOR OURSELVES, NOT FOR OTHERS. This, in my judgment, is the only way to be respected abroad and happy at home."

James Roosevelt Children Guarded

North Hampton, N. H., June 6—Secret service men today guarded the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Cushing where Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt and their two children arrived to spend the summer.

At the express order of the President, photographers were barred from taking pictures of the President's grandchildren.

Visitors who attempt to reach the estate which lies some distance from the main road, must identify themselves before guards permit them to approach.

Coolidge to Battle Curley in Race for Senate

LIFE STORY OF CHARLES F. HURLEY

The Boston Sunday Advertiser begins today the life story of Charles F. Hurley, indorsed for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Turn to Page 9.

State Ticket

Chosen at Democratic Convention

SENATOR—James M. Curley, Boston.
GOVERNOR—Charles F. Hurley, Cambridge.
LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR—Philip J. Philbin, Clinton.
SECRETARY OF STATE—Joseph Edmund Donovan, Boston.
TREASURER—James C. Scanlan, Somerville.
AUDITOR—Thomas H. Buckley, Abington.
ATTORNEY GENERAL—Paul A. Dever, Cambridge.

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Springfield, June 6—Democratic convention delegates, after completing their state ticket, left for their homes tonight with high hopes of more campaign harmony than two years ago, but with three contests threatening peace.

The convention's nomination of Philip J. Philbin of Clinton, a close associate of Senator Walsh, for lieutenant-governor, stunned former City Councillor Francis E. Kelly of Dorchester, who charged "robbery" and announced he would carry his contest into the popular primary in September.

U. S. Senator Marcus A. Coolidge will similarly contest the convention choice of Governor Curley for Senator, and will probably have the backing of Mayor Mansfield of Boston, still a potential candidate himself.

SPIKES RUMOR OF BOLT

Leo D. Walsh of South Boston will contest the convention's designation of State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley of Abington for re-nomination.

This contest cannot be taken very seriously, but Kelly, who has twice before campaigned for the nomination for lieutenant-governor, can make trouble for Philbin, and possibly Coolidge can make things somewhat interesting in the senatorial conflict.

Generally speaking the Democratic party has a more harmonious campaign than for some years past. Both Gov. Curley and former Gov. Ely today gave Charles F. Hurley, candidate for Governor, their full endorsement.

Curley's endorsement "spiked" reports of a bolt and, should Lieutenant-Governor Joseph L. Hurley decide to fight it out with his namesake at the popular primary, he cannot count on the Governor's support.

It is unlikely the Fall River Hurley will wage the fight.

PRACTICALLY UNKNOWN

Philbin, first mentioned as a candidate only yesterday when the delegates gathered for their opening session, won the nomination for lieutenant-governor amid great confusion.

He is virtually unknown in politics, publicly, although behind the scenes he has been an important political figure for years.

Philbin is not quite 38 years old,

Gov. Landon So Far Ahead, He's 'Out' in the Betting, Damon Runyon Finds

KANSAN A 'TRIPLE-PLATED CINCH' ON FIRST BALLOT

By DAMON RUNYON
Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service.

Cleveland, June 6—Governor Landon of Kansas is a triple-plated cinch to be nominated by the Republicans for President, probably on the first ballot, and possibly by acclamation. He is "out" in the betting.

That is to say, he is regarded as such a sure thing that the price-makers refuse to offer a price against him.

The show is practically over before it starts. Only doubt seems to be about who will be the vice-presidential candidate.

The tiny cloud of political mention that blew up, no bigger than a vagrant paragraph, out of the landscape of one of Uncle Jim Farley's "typical prairie states" a little over a year ago, has hit Cleveland with astonishingly violence.

It has come into this town as a Kansas cyclone.

Veteran political meteorologists, who hadn't noticed any sudden great manifestations of their barometers are peering from under the wreckage of other presidential aspirations, and muttering:

"Where the hell did that come from?"

FAR FROM A ZEPHYR

They had been vague signs of the Landon storm approaching from afar off, to be sure, but some of them thought it was just a passing zephyr that would spend itself when it encountered the rock-ribbed Republican tradition and form.

They thought it would go away and die out over the lake after about the second ballot. They had no idea that is was going to create such havoc that it will never be possible to assemble a second ballot.

One old timer, safely anchored to a gin rickey, listened to the best of the Landon breeze against the windows, and inquired in awe:

"You don't suppose it's the verce of the people, do you?"

"I don't know," replied another old 'un. "I never heard the verce of the people for a Republican convention, so how can I tell?"

"What puzzles me is how this all sneaked up on us without any warning. I don't think it's fair."

STORY ALL WRITTEN

A few peppery souls such as Bill Borah are still lurking in the background stirring up a few items of news now and then, but the newspapermen are well aware that the big story has been written, which is the nomination of Landon, of Kansas.

With Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, definitely out, (by his own announcement) as a vice-presidential candidate, this nomination is now an open race, with the Kansans talking of Governor Bridges, of New Hampshire.

They want to get a running mate for their favorite son from as far east as possible.

Governor Hoffman, of New Jersey, would have been a cinch for the vice-presidential nomination if he hadn't gotten himself into that Hauptmann mess. Now they wouldn't touch him with a ten-foot pole.

The Kansans don't fancy Senator Wadsworth, of New York.

LIBERAL PLATFORM

The platform will be liberal enough if the boys listen to William Allen White. The Kansas crowd, probably reflecting Landon, want to beat the Democrats to it on all manner of platform liberalities, including matters that have to do with the Constitution.

If it were left to the Kansans alone, the Republican platform would probably be the most outspoken document in political history. There would be no shilly-shallying on any ointp.

The men and women from the Sunflower state seem to see nothing remarkable in the manner in which their man has suddenly grown from a sort of political acorn scarcely known beyond the borders of his own state, to a giant oak whose shadow stretches between the political coasts, and who holds in the hollow of his hand a great gathering of delegates to most of whom remains a deep mystery.

Few of them have ever seen him. Few of them know much about him, except from reading the hurriedly gathered data of the past few months. He has never announced himself a candidate for the Presidential nomination, yet they come marching into Cleveland from all parts of the country firmly committed to him.

READY FOR ACTION

LATEST PICTURE of Governor Alf Landon of Kansas, whose strength continues to grow daily as G. O. P. convention nears.

SECOND PLACE TURNED DOWN BY VANDENBERG

Michigan Senator Says He Can Be of More Service to Party in His Present Post

Washington, June 6 (INS)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan formally announced today he would not be available as candidate for the Republican vice-presidential nomination.

Prominently mentioned as a presidential possibility until recently, and since as a running mate for whoever may be chosen as presidential nominee at the Republican convention, Vandenberg's announcement came as something of a shock and surprise to Republican circles, which believed he would accept the vice-presidential nomination if he were called.

The announcement came in a brief formal statement. The Michigan senator said:

"I have been complimented by generous suggestions that I may be available for the Republican vice-presidential nomination.

"Without presuming to anticipate any such improbability, I think I owe it to my friends to state in advance and with finality that I would find it impossible to accept such an assignment.

"I am sure I can be of greater service in active labors on the Senate floor than on its silent rostrum."

West Bridgewater Police Chief Dies

West Bridgewater, June 6—Stricken with a heart attack, Warren P. Laughton, 52, chief of police and of the fire department, died suddenly here today. He had been head of the fire department for a quarter of a century and chief of police for eleven years. The widow and one son, Warren, Jr., student at Georgia Tech, survive.

The G. O. P. Platform

Jefferson expressed the same thought as to what our aims should be:

"Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations—entangling alliances with none."

"As to our relations," said he, "with other countries, it might repay all of us to read Washington's farewell address again. I know it is said that the world has changed since Washington's time. It has, but COMMON SENSE IS STILL COMMON SENSE.

"If you will read the whole address ALL the reference to foreign policy, not just the one or two usually quoted, you will be amazed to see how far Washington's common sense applies to this modern age."

These words of Landon are true.

THE Republican platform ought to ADOPT the principles of Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln.

The greatest Republican who ever lived, Abraham Lincoln, cheerfully acknowledged the greatness of Jefferson, the first of Democrats, and commended his wisdom to all generations of Americans.

"The principles of Jefferson," said Lincoln, "are the definitions and axioms of free society."

Grover Cleveland's words can be placed beside those of Lincoln. Said Cleveland:

"We should never for a moment discredit the wisdom or devotion of Jefferson, who knew so well the essentials of our country's perpetuation and welfare."

Jefferson was the oracle and expounder of the faith of a free democratic society.

His principles afford a sound and logical basis for the coalition of patriotic Americans now so much desired.

Their adoption by the Republican party will do more to cement all right thinking Americans into unity of action in this great crisis than all the expedients of party management.

ON every side false lights are set up for our destruction.

Our rescue and our safety will be found in steadfastly following the way which PRINCIPLES point out, in shunning temporary devices and in resisting misconceptions, however popular it may seem at the moment.

Let the Republican party manifest its patriotism and sincerity both in its platform and in its choice of candidates.

Let it go before the country as fearlessly, as progressive and as sincerely American as in the days of Lincoln.

If it does that it will WIN.

And we do not say it MAY win. We say IT WILL.

'Dear Mr. President'

DELEGATES GOT A SHINE ON PANTS

Norman Snoops in On Republican Convention

Winston Norman, noted author of the "Dear Govt." letters that have been appearing in the Hearst newspapers, is in Cleveland to write his impressions of the Republican national convention. In the accompanying "letter" he gives President Roosevelt and readers of the Hearst newspapers a "preview" of the Cleveland convocation.

Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Cleveland, O., June 6.

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

Well, Mr. President, this letter is being wrote in Cleveland. I came to snoop on them Republicans for you & Mr. Farley, and I haven't got nothing but bad news so far.

The convenshun don't start till Tuesday, but the town is already full of more Republicans than you ever seen in your life. You can tell they are Republicans, because they got a shine on their pants, a badge on their chest, and a smile on the front of their face.

By golly, the liveing conditions is awful for a Democrat like me. The hotels is full of Republicans thicker than bedbugs, and even the 2-bit flop houses has went to about $10 per day. You can't get no place to sleep at, and you can't get no bath Mr. President, delegates sleeping in all the bathtubs. By the time them Congressmen gets here from Wash. they will most likely have to put up at the Zoo.

Takes a 'Look-See'

Well Mr. President, I got some news that will shock you. I took a squint at the big Cleveland auditorium where the convenshun will be held, and who do you suppose done the job of fixing it up real pretty? Mr. Hopkins and the WPA.

I guess that is about the sillyest boondoggle Mr. Hopkins ever done. So if the Republican party turns out to be a success you can blame it all on him.

I got some even worse bad news, Mr. Pres. Them Kansas delegates has come to town with a big sunflower in their buttonhole. The "Stop Landon" thing don't mean nothing at all, they just want to stop Landon long enough to climb on his band-waggon.

The Landon band-waggon is here whizzing along, Mr. Pres. It looks like they will be hooking on the White House door very quick, you better not let them in.

Another piece of bad news, the Republicans has threw out them Old Guard Torys that was hoping to run things. So there won't be no snobs-filled hotel you. It will just be the best man wins.

Most of the delegates is uninstructed. "Uninstructed" don't mean they wasn't bright in school, it just means they don't take orders from nobody but their wife.

Better Halves There

Well, they hrung their wife with them, Mr. President, and she is for Gov. Landon, so the uninstructed delegates has their instructions, it looks like Landon on the 1 or 2 ballot.

The only good news for us Democrats is Senator Borah. Senator Borah is buzzing around like a fly in the anointment, he won't play with nobody that don't play with him. So it looks like he will be playing idiots delight all by himself. But the deligates is haveing conipion fits, they are more scairt of Mr. Borah than they are of you and Mr. Farley put together.

By the way, Mr. President, do you remember a man by the name of Mr. Peek? He used to work for your AAA in the days when them six million pigs died to save their country. Well, you will be horrified when I tell you where Mr. Peek is now at. He is now setting on the Republican platform, helping them to fix up a very nice farm relief plank.

By golly, Mr. Pres., it is hard for a Democrat to find out anything around here. If you ask a Republican delegate what is happening, they just shake their head and says, "I don't know; I am a stranger in politics myself."

Flops as a Snoop

So I been snooping on the outskirts of them big newspaper men. I tried to ast them a question, but they was so busy asking each other that I didn't get no chance. So I guess nobody knows anything, convenshun is always like that.

Excuse me, Mr. President, but now I am going to tell you about sex. There is an awful lot of people from the female sex around here, and most of them has delegate badges on their chest.

Well, I always figgered politics was for men only, so I ast a hotel clerk about it. "My goodness," I says, "is some of the deligates going to be ladys?"

"I hope so," he says "but you can't never tell."

Yours Truly,
W. Norman

A boom was renewed for Robert A. Taft of Ohio, for vice-president despite the accusation of Senator Borah that Republican National Committee funds were improperly used in the victorious primary struggle waged against Borah by the young Ohioan.

FULLER AND BRIDGES

Senator Lester J. Dickinson's name was propelled into the contest without his knowledge or consent. Former Governor Frank O. Lowden was being consulted to determine whether he would accept the honor.

Governor Bridges of New Hampshire, former Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts and former Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania were placed under consideration.

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot wife of the progressive former Pennsylvania governor, was in the convention city today contending that Pinchot would bring strength to the ticket because of his known independence, his liberal viewpoint toward the rights of the working people and his residence in the populous state.

The announcement of Vandenberg's decision not to run was a surprise and possibly a disappointment to Campaign Manager Hamilton.

WELCOME THE SUPPORT

Shortly before the announcement came from the Michigan senator in Washington, Hamilton was asked at a press conference if "an arrangement" had been made to have Michigan's votes come from Vandenberg to the Kansas governor. Hamilton replied:

"I have had absolutely no contact in the matter with Senator Vandenberg or any of his friends.

"If it is true, as has been reported, that Michigan is ready to support Governor Landon, we certainly would welcome that support."

Hamilton declared that the Landon forces would exert absolutely no influence to prevent the convention from nominating the Kansas governor on the first ballot or to dictate the choice of vice-president or write the party's platform.

He said:

"We certainly will not try to arrange a vote in order to make a picture of the convention for strategic effect upon the country.

"If the majority of the delegates decide to nominate Governor Landon on the first ballot I see no reason why their leadership should not permit them to do so.

"We will not adopt any artificial or mechanical means.

"Nor will we try to discourage any of the delegates from complying with their instructions or from voting for their 'favorite sons'."

Senator Borah's friends, already established in headquarters here, announced that he would arrive tomorrow. One of them exclaimed:

"He's going to raise hell."

The National League of Women Voters established headquartere here today and brought a truckload of petitions, signed by 250,000 voters in 47 states, demanding the "abolition of the spoils system and establishment of the merit system" in government service.

Potatoes Up to $6 In Northern Maine

Fort Fairfield, Me., June 6—Potatoes moved into the "luxury" category here today when they sold at $6 a barrel for the first time since 1927. One load sold for $6.05 a barrel.

A shortage in other sections of the country boosted prices in the past month to bring the season's average return to growers to $1.75 a barrel. A year ago this time, growers were glad to get rid of the crop at 15 cents a barrel.

NEW Auto Death CURB

DRINK PLACES TO BE WATCHED

Drinking places frequented by liquor-thirsty motorists will come under the watchful scrutiny of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin's inspectors and examiners in a drive ordered by the registrar to keep drunken drivers off the road and keep down Massachusetts' fast mounting automobile death toll.

In an order issued by Registrar Goodwin, the 185 inspectors and examiners in his department were urged to wage an unyielding war against persons under the influence of liquor who operate motor cars.

Deaths Mount

The order read as follows:

"The drunken driver has begun his summer campaign against the lives and property of decent citizens. I wish you would arrange your working hours so as to cover all known drinking places where these drunks imbibe, especially so as to be on the job late Saturday nights.

Deaths from automobile accidents in Greater Boston since the first of the year reached a new high of 85, when, yesterday, Death took the wheel five times.

Robert F. Smith, 25, of Evans street, North Weymouth, was killed in a three-car accident on Old Colony Parkway, Dorchester.

Joseph Benotti, 57, of Sampson Field, South Braintree, was killed by an automobile, operated, according to the police, by Paul Battaglia, of Franklin street, South Braintree.

Third fatality was recorded when James Sarkis, of 253 Shawmut avenue, South End, died in Quincy City Hospital yesterday from injuries sustained when struck by a hit-and-run auto at Hancock and Linden streets, Norfolk Downs.

Worker Dies

Three-year-old Raymond Matheson, of 17 Hebert st., West Somerville, was dead on arrival at Somerville Hospital after he had been struck by an automobile, driven, police say, by Mary A. Aylward, of Rindge ave., Cambridge, near his home.

At Providence, R. I., William Francis Penner, 57, a Works Progress Administration worker was killed as he walked along Oakland Beach road.

Eugene Boutin, 21, a mill worker, of Hoosick Falls, Vt., was instantly killed when he fell out of an automobile as it rounded a sharp curve in Bennington, Vt. Miss Helen Wagner one of the party members, who were returning from Lake Aluderdale, N. Y., was seriously injured.

BEAUTIES SHOW SHOE STYLES

MILADY'S LATEST CHIC in footwear will be displayed at three-day shoe parade, starting June 8, at Penn House, Hotel Bradford. Alison Willis (left) is wearing new fall suede, one-strap oxford, with perforated vamp. Paula Rudolph has on a pair of T-strap shoes, with cut-outs of marrons brown kid. Other creations will be displayed.

SHOE DOLL PARADE

Dainty Toes for Cute Footwear

Boston will prove again this week its claim as the shoe capital of America in the 17th annual Boston Shoe Fair, to be held at the Statler and Copley hotels for three days beginning tomorrow.

Pretty shoes for prettier feet will be on display on all sides at the two hotels and on each night through Wednesday in the Penthouse at the Hotel Bradford.

Miss Alicia Willis, Miss Paula Rudolph and about fifty other Cinderellas will parade New England shoes on the feet of New England girls.

James H. Stone, secretary of the New England Shoe & Leather Association, representing the trade, expects the largest volume of buying here since the depression.

And if so, New England factories will be humming through the dull months of June, July and August.

In the shoe style calendar, summer is all over. It is autumn, the leaves have turned, suffusing the landscape with brightly burnished color.

You will find these colors—every shade in the spectrum—in fall leathers. And if you are a woman you will walk into winter with the sunset at your feet.

"Missing" Girl Phones Parents

Attleboro, June 6 (INS)—Sought through three states when she was missing for two days, Miss Gertrude Mae Charette, 18, Pembroke College freshman, telephoned her parents from Providence, R. I., today that she was with her aunt there.

She left home Thursday to attend a Brown University festival. A hunt by police of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut was called off.

Star in England After U. S. Flight

Liverpool, June 6 (INS)—Ann Harding, film actress, and her seven-year-old daughter, Jane, disembarked today from the liner Duchess of Atholl and departed for London in a special coach of the boat train.

The actress told news correspondents she was wearyly of talking about the "threats" of her ex-husband, Harry Bannister, who is seeking custody of their daughter.

"I want to forget all about it and get to work," she declared.

Youth a Suicide; Note Kept Secret

Nashua, N. H., June 6—Placing a shotgun against his chest, Eugene Pratt, 21, killed himself today in the kitchen of his home here, according to Medical Referee Dr. S. G. Davis. Police refused to reveal the contents of a note left by Pratt.

JURIST In Toils OF LAW

POLLUTED CLAM SALE CHARGED

Haverhill, June 6—Judge Howard C. Page, of Seabrook's Municipal Court, who succeeded Judge David Chase, ousted by the New Hampshire legislature as a so-called "front-lawn" jurist, was in trouble with the law himself today.

In central district court here, today, Judge Page, who is president of the Seabrook Shellfish Company when he is not holding court in the peaceful New Hampshire town, was fined $100 by Judge Daniel J. Caven after he was found guilty of selling polluted clams.

Appeals Case

Judge Page, represented by counsel, appealed the fine and was released in bonds of $200. He did not take the stand to testify.

State Inspector Rudolph J. Hawley told the court he took a sample of Judge Page's clams, allegedly sent to a Haverhill store, and after chemical analysis found the clams to be polluted.

Joseph H. McCarthy, senior chemist at the Lawrence Experimental Plant, Lawrence, connected with the state department of conservation, corroborated Hawley's testimony of alleged pollution of the shellfish.

The alleged polluted sample was taken by state officials in March.

Young Bank Clerk, Shotgun Missing

John C. McCourt, 23, a Boston bank clerk of Lincoln street, Newton Highlands, and a shotgun are missing.

Telling his parents that someone wanted to borrow the shotgun, young McCourt pieced it in his automobile last Tuesday morning and drove away.

He has not been heard from since.

According to a story told the Newton police by the man's father, Jesse E. McCourt, wholesale jewelry merchant, it is thought that the missing man might have started for an uncle's home in Wisconsin.

Will Rogers' Girl Acts in Maine Now

Wants to Learn More About The Stage

Lakewood-In-Maine, June 6—Let other young ladies storm the pearly gates of Hollywood. Mary Rogers, pretty blonde daughter of the late and illustrious Will, is determined to get as far away as possible—and still remain in the theater realm, where for many years her father's name was made to shine.

She says so herself.

Here at Lakewood tonight, where she is appearing in support of the veteran American character comedian, J. C. Nugent, in his new play, "Mr. Shaddy," Miss Rogers reiterated her resolve to let the movies do without her — until further notice, she admitted with a broad smile.

Movies Want Her

The movies, let it be said, are not at all satisfied. They have begged her to "listen to reason."

But listening to reason is apparently the exact reason pretty Mary Rogers remains in Maine, at the furthest United States extremity from California.

Having seen plenty of California and its impatient manner of hustling gifted young ladies into the films, Mary Rogers is wary of "arriving too soon."

Wise beyond her years, Miss Rogers is taking the longest way round. She is first "putting in her apprenticeship" on the stage. And that is why you will find her at this charming summer theater rehearsing one play while acting in another and taking $50 a week instead of a thousand.

She Progresses

Under the guidance of Melville Burke, one of Broadway's most distinguished stage directors, Mary Rogers is developing. Next week she will appear with Don Dillaway in the lead in "Apron Strings," Dorrance Davis' popular comedy of several seasons past.

Prevented by illness last winter from appearing in Boston with William Gillette in his revival of Austin Strong's "Three Wise Fools," Miss Rogers has fully recovered, and, in the few off-moments not taken up with rehearsal, is enjoying life in one of Arthur Byron's cottages on the edge of the lake.

She is accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Theda Blake, sister of the late Will Rogers.

Shuns Films To Study Acting

OHIO BOUND BAY STATERS HAIL LANDON

Carnival Spirit Prevails as Delegates Plan to Cast 33 Votes for Governor

In a carnival mood, and feeling certain of the nomination of Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, as presidential standard bearer, probably on the first ballot, delegates and alternates to the Republican national convention leave today for Cleveland, for convention city.

Augmented by more than a hundred party chieftains and camp followers, the delegates' special will leave the South Station at 4:45, Daylight Saving Time. The party is due in Cleveland Monday morning.

Efforts were being directed to-ward the 33 Massachusetts votes cast solidly for the Kansan, in conformity with the preponderant preference for Governor expressed by the party voters in the April 28 primary.

ALL FOR LANDON

Recent announcement by J. Henry Roraback, Connecticut national committeeman and one of the last of the Old Guardists, that the 19 uninstructed delegates from that state will vote as a block for Landon, had its effect on Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island, where the delegations are split on candidates.

Vermont's delegation is solid for Landon, and Rhode Island's eight votes have been split 50-50. Indications are that the Kansan will get the entire Maine and New Hampshire block at the latest on the second ballot.

Congressman Joseph Martin of North Attleboro has a majority of the Massachusetts delegation pledged to his selection as national committeeman. He will succeed the retiring national committeeman, John Richardson of Canton. Richardson went to Cleveland some days ago to attend the duties of his office.

A brisk contest is under way for selection of national committee women. Mrs. Margaret A. Green of Holyoke has popular support for this honor, although friends of the incumbent, Mrs. Mabel Hatch-elder of Worcester, are pressing for her re-election.

It appears settled that the dean of the congressional delegation from Massachusetts, Congressman Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge, will be the delegate's choice for the important assignment to the resolutions committee of the convention.

BAY STATE DELEGATES

Former Lieutenant Governor Caspar G. Bacon, district delegate and one of the foremost supporters of Governor Landon, is being boomed for the position of chairman of the delegation. Some of the delegates, resenting the upward surge in the party councils of the younger and more liberal forces, are grumbling over the Bacon candidacy.

They have been claiming that Bacon has been too near the Landon candidacy and for that reason should not seek the position. Bacon's friends retort that his prominence in the campaign from the start makes him the logical leader of the delegation.

The 33 delegates from Massachusetts to the convention are: Former Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams of Concord; George F. Booth, Worcester publisher; Congressman Joseph Martin, Congressman Allan T. Treadway, Dennis T. Noonan of Pittsfield, Arthur H. Moody of Amherst, Edward J. Ruxton of Springfield, Owen A. Hoban of Gardner, David E. Hobson of Southbridge, Winfield A. Schuster of East Douglass, R. H. Bristow Dresser of Brookdale, Robert E. Goodwin of Concord, Wallace R. Lovett of Melrose.

Edward E. Hicken of Newburyport, Charles F. Sprague of Swampscott, Walter M. Lamont of Andover, George F. Weldon of Lynn, Charles B. Ladd of Everett, Joseph Wiggin of Malden, Cecil E. Fraser of Cambridge, Maynard Hutchinson of Newton, Gaspar G. Bacon of Boston, Henry Parkman, Jr., of Boston, Alonzo B. Cook of Boston, Robert G. Wilson, Jr., of Boston, Eli M. Levasinsky of Boston, Charles W. Hedges of Quincy, George C. P. Olson of Brockton, Willard A. Ormsbee of Taunton, Cyrus C. Rounsville of Fall River, John W. Beal of Hanover and Joseph F. Francis of Fairhaven.

THE SENATOR SAYS:

DEMOCRATS ASK $1 Per to Hear PREXY ACCEPT

Springfield, June 6—When the Senator comes in he has a big load, only this time, much to everybody's surprise, it is evenly distributed between the Senator and two bundles he is carrying.

The egg on the crest of The Senator's noggin, which he gets from a frying-pan noise maker during the early morning voting, is now lined like an Easter rabbit egg. What is more, he is still strictly on the standup.

The Senator

"Senator," says Jimmy, "I see you have bring your lunch."

"Timmy," says The Senator, "what I have here is not my own lunch, but maybe it is a little hay for the donkey. While you are mining me a Wong Lee Zipper I will be unwrapping the bundles so you can put the peek on what is contained therein."

With that, The Senator begins unwrapping the larger of his two bundles and what is in it but a huge stack of little embossed cards in a very nice printing job indeed.

"Senator," says Timmy, "I hear of a lot of scalping under way at the convention but I did not think you would lower your dignity to participate. You must have easy a million tickets there."

"Timmy," says The Senator, taking a short sip of his Wong Lee Zipper, "to be exact, what I have here is one quarter of million tickets which I will now proceed to tell you about because nobody knows about them yet.

Bumps Into McGrath

"It is just before daybreak today, right after the Charlie Hurley nomination, that I am walking out on the bridge over the Connecticut river for a little fresh air—which by the way nearly proves fatal—when who do I spy just ahead of me, going in the same direction and very stealthy indeed, but Mr. Joseph McGrath, the Democratic State Committee chairman.

"Joe is getting very close to the rail of the bridge when he spots me and tries to hide this very bundle of tickets you see here. Joe is more upset than I have ever seen him."

The Senator pauses to zip the last of his Wong Lee Zipper and while Timmy is chalking up the ditto marks, he comes through with the lowdown.

"It is only after a long heart to heart talk, and a blind offer on my own part to be of any service possible, regardless of consequences, that the State Committee Chairman unburdens himself. What these tickets are, Timmy, as you can see, is for three gatherings to be held in Massachusetts where those who are interested in doing so may listen on the radio, at the cost of $1 per person, to President Roosevelt accept his nomination for re-election, after he is nominated.

"These tickets, all 250,000 of them, have been sent to Joe McGrath by the Democratic National Committee to sell in Massachusetts for $250,000.

"Well, Timmy, I have made a blind promise to help out Joe so I cannot do anything but take the tickets off his hands, for gratitude, I was very much afraid at first had touched me deeply.

Ducats $1 Per

"Now, Timmy, I have these 250,000 tickets in hand to sell at $1 per ticket and those who would like to gather somewhere and listen to President Roosevelt's speech, paying $1 apiece to do it. I have even been told by Joe that if these are not enough, I can get more.

"Presumably the three gathering will be held in Boston, Worcester and Springfield. What I am first trying to do is to figure out any three places where a total of 250,000 people can assemble in Massachusetts for any purpose except going in swimming. This is a WPA project in itself.

"Then what I am next trying to figure out is why anyone will pay $1 apiece, or why 250,000 people in Massachusetts will pay $250,000, to listen to what they can hear for nothing.

"Then I am also doing a little arithmetic on this thing and as near as I can figure out without the aid of an adding machine and a ruler, if each of the Democratic State Committee chairmen has received 250,000 tickets to sell at $1 apiece, this is a total of $15,000,000, a very tidy sum, which the Democratic National Committee expects the Democrats to pay to hear President Roosevelt tell them why they nominate him."

Bare Bundle Contents

"Senator" says Timmy, setting up the Wong Lee Zippers all around again, "all you forgot to mention is who gets the contracts for printing these 12,000,000 tickets, and also what you are planning to do with your quarter of a million of them."

"Timmy," says The Senator, "I am not talking about printing contracts but what I have decided to do with them is a different story. I am selling them back to the Democratic National Committee for 50 cents apiece and as they are worth $1 apiece, we will both be making $125,000 on the deal."

All of the boys agree this is very nifty finance and Timmy suggests that The Senator should be on the Democratic National Committee. This calls for another round of the Wong Lee Zippers.

"Which brings me, Timmy," says The Senator, to the contents of the bundle. These are not tickets, as you will notice. These are the personal and business cards of Mr. Wong Lee, the Chinese laundryman and notary public from Melrose, who was elected a delegate from the Fourth Middlesex District, pledged to Charlie Hurley for governor.

Wong Lee Votes

"Mr. Wong Lee's election is about the best Melrose has ever done for the Democratic party but that is neither here or there. The point is that from the time of his election as a delegate, Mr. Wong Lee was a very strong Charlie Hurley booster, calling him one of the greatest men of all time next to Governor Jim, who made him notary public.

"His election gets a lot of attention nationally and he is always quoted as telling what a wonderful man Charlie Hurley is. In fact, these cards which you see here were distributed by Mr. Wong Lee to nearly all of the Charlie Hurley men at the convention."

"Senator," says Timmy. "What is the point? How do you get the cards?"

"Timmy," says The Senator, "the way I get the cards is by catching them as the are scaled out of the windows of the Hotel Kimball by the Charlie Hurley delegates just after the break of dawn.

"It was suspected in the small hours, and later authentically verified by myself, that Mr. Wong Lee, of Melrose, the great Charlie Hurley booster, cast one low-voiced vote for Paul A. Dever."

"Senator" says Timmy, "you only make one mistake that I notice. You do not go very good on the choice for lieutenant governor."

Sidetrack Kelly

"Well, Timmy," says the senator, "I did not guess they would toss in a mail order candidate at the last minute and most of the big boys wanted Arthur Lyman in the spot but Arthur is a very poor politician and a secret poll Friday noon indicated he could not swing a sufficient number of votes away from Francis E. Kelly.

"It was very necessary to the big boys that Francis E. Kelly be side-tracked because the big boys do not like Francis E. Kelly and he is known to them by that well known name of Anna Thema.

"I have it on good authority that the suggestion to toss Phil Philbin into the race came from nobody else but Joe Kane who gets the quick nod from Dave Walsh and quicker than you can lick a one cent stamp. All of the postmasters are on the telephone contacting the delegates to go down the line for Phil and Herbie Foy is taking charge of the emergency, so I guess this had become a federal emergency job.

"Francis E. Kelly can be depended upon to give the convention slate a lot of worry in the primary."

With this The Senator turns abruptly and starts to leave.

"Senator," calls Timmy, "you are forgetting to pay for the Wong Lee Zippers."

"Timmy," says The Senator, "I am slightly embarrassed for cash and was hoping these would be on the house. I guess you will have to take a check."

And with that The Senator places upon the bar one bright pink laundry check marked with those strange dark symbols that only the Chinese laundryman can decipher.

"Senator," says Timmy, "this is no shirty—This looks like Uncle Dan's handwriting."

Catholic Schools Drum Corps Meet

Hundreds of Catholic school students participated in the annual contest of bands, drum and bugle corps exhibitions for the Cardinal O'Connell trophies at Boston College Alumni Field yesterday.

Judges of the contest were John A. O'Shea, Arthur Fiedler, Fortunato Sordillo, Capt. Oscar Bohlin and his staff of legion judges.

The exhibition and demonstration was open to the public.

E. H. S. Class of '11 Has 25th Reunion

Graduates of the class of 1911 of Boston English high school held their silver anniversary reunion at Ten Acres, Wayland, yesterday, with a program of sports as the principal attraction.

Officers of the class are H. Leon Sharmat, president; J. B. Applebaum, vice-president, and Charles Epstein, secretary. Carleton M. Allen had charge of yesterday's arrangements.

SEN. COOLIDGE SAYS HE WILL STAY IN RACE

Only Something Unexpected Will Keep Name Off Ballot, He Avers; Praises Mansfield

Although the only candidate endorsed by the state Democratic convention at Springfield, Gov. James M. Curley may not be the only Democratic candidate for United States Senator in the September primaries.

The probability that he will be opposed by the present junior senator, Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg, or Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston, appeared probable from an interview Senator Coolidge gave a Sunday Advertiser reporter yesterday.

Interviewed in his Washington office by telephone, Senator Coolidge said:

"Unless something unexpected happens, my name will appear on the primary ballot for the office of United States Senator."

"Does that mean you will actively oppose Governor Curley for the nomination?" he was asked.

UP TO VOTERS

"I didn't say that. I said my name would appear on the ballot."

Refusing to clarify this statement further, he remarked cryptically "that not many voters took part in the election of delegates to the convention."

And a fair inference is that he will let the voters decide whether they want Coolidge or Curley.

He refused to deny he would support Mayor Mansfield should the latter decide to enter the lists against Gov. Curley, as has been reported locally for some time.

"Will you support Mayor Mansfield against Gov. Curley?" he was asked.

PRAISES MANSFIELD

"I have heard the report that Mayor Mansfield might run for the Senate," he answered.

"That story probably originated because he was invited by my son-in-law to lay the cornerstone of a new school in Fitchburg.

"Mayor Mansfield and I are old friends. In fact, I campaigned for him when he ran for Governor back in 1924. He is a very splendid type.

"I think very highly of him both personally and politically."

Sen. Coolidge seemed much amused by the recital of how Gov. Curley was nominated and acclaimed by the convention, with only one voice heard in opposition.

That was the voice of Mayor Robert Greenwood, of Fitchburg, who married one of the senator's daughters.

"I have been too busy here to seek the support of any delegates to the convention," he said.

STANDS ON RECORD

Asked if he felt, as Mayor Greenwood did, that his record in support of Pres. Roosevelt entitled him to another term, Sen. Coolidge said:

"I believe I have been a good representative not only of the people of Massachusetts who elected me, but of all New England.

"It is true I did not support Pres. Roosevelt in every single step, but I have supported him on major issues."

Still chuckling, he thanked his interviewer and said good bye as he could "get back to work."

Coolidge Still in Race, Says Mayor

Mayor Mansfield characterized yesterday as "very pleasing" the nomination of State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley as Democratic candidate for governor.

"The state treasurer is the strongest candidate and best vote getter of any of the three candidates for the nomination," he said.

Asked what his reaction was to the nomination of Governor Curley as candidate for the Senate, the mayor said he had, as far as his personal intentions were concerned, no statement to add to his statement of the day before.

He had said he was "not a candidate for anything, at present, but that circumstances might alter his intentions."

"It was a foregone conclusion," the mayor said yesterday, "that Governor Curley would dominate the convention, as far as his nomination was concerned. But that doesn't mean that Senator Coolidge is out of the picture, as the speech of Mayor Greenwood of Fitchburg showed.

"Senator Coolidge is still an active and lively candidate."

'Bossy' Will Run, Without Soft Pedal

Newburyport, June 6 (INS)—Mayor Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis today announced he was a candidate for Congress as an independent to represent the Sixth Massachusetts District left vacant by the death of Congressman A. Piatt Andrew, Gloucester.

At the same time, "Bossy" announced he was through with the "silent campaign" which won him a third term as mayor.

"I shall fight clean but hard," said Gillis. "There will be no pussyfooting on the vital issues."

CHARLES F. HURLEY IS GIVEN FULL SUPPORT OF GOVERNOR CURLEY

a Harvard graduate, and has been secretary and campaign manager for Senator Walsh. The senior senator supported him for the nomination.

"I've worked for months and I'm robbed by a man whose candidacy was announced only a few hours ago," shouted Kelly, after asking permission to speak.

The Boston candidate's chief aide, Representative Bernard Casey of Boston, tried to question the vote of some of the delegations and charged a quorum was not present and that remaining delegates were voting in the names of those who had gone home.

Kelly declared he would take his fight to the polls.

After the protests had been overruled and the commotion stilled, the final vote nominating Philbin on the second ballot, was announced as follows:

Philbin, 336; State Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman, 126; Kelly, 145; Senator Joseph A. Langone of Boston, 28. Philbin had 18 more than the 318 necessary for nomination.

SANTOSUOSSO NAMED

Dr. Joseph Santosuosso of Boston was nominated for secretary of state by an enormous margin, Mrs. Margaret T. O'Riordan of Jamaica Plain withdrew before the balloting started.

Charles F. Hurley, decisive victor over his Cambridge fellow townsman, Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever, as well as over Joseph L. Hurley, who ran third, was in full command here today but was outwardly maintaining a hands-off policy for the rest of the state ticket.

When the session got under way, after long delay, Senator Langone established a precedent by placing his own name in nomination for lieutenant governor.

Representative Casey then nominated Kelly who has twice before sought the nomination of his party for the second highest executive post in the Commonwealth. The name of Lyman and Philbin were then placed before the convention. Mayor William P. Yoerg of Holyoke announced he had decided not to run.

The first test showed the powerful prestige given to Philbin's candidacy by his close association with Senator Walsh.

The vote was Philbin 239, Lyman 124, Kelly 164, Langone 76. A complimentary block of 11 votes was given to Timothy J. Cronin of Somerville by the delegates of that district.

Philbin lacked 63 votes of a majority; 302 votes being necessary to nominate him.

Philbin was then nominated for lieutenant governor on the second ballot.

DEMANDS ROLL CALL

Representative Casey, for Candidate Kelly, violently objected to the announcement of the vote of the Cape and Plymouth district and demanded a roll call. The acting chairman ruled that the poll could not be questioned unless it was done by a member of the delegation. The registration of the vote for this group was temporarily passed over.

Kelly in an impassioned speech claimed he was robbed and said he would take his fight to the people. Casey raised the point of a quorum. The chairman said that it was only necessary to have 20 per cent of the delegates in the hall.

It was decided to call the roll and establish the fact that a quorum was present.

Convention Chairman Leo M. Harlow, satisfied the vote was entirely regular, eventually declared Philbin nominated.

Philbin was in the class of '21 at Harvard and after his four years there he went to Columbia Law School. He has a law office at 1 State street, Boston.

He was a member of the state commission which studied unemployment compensation, by appointment of Governor Curley, and was at one time counsel for the U. S. Senate committee on education and labor. He has never held public elective office, nor any public official position except the one to which Governor Curley appointed him. He was campaign manager for Senator Walsh two years ago.

At Harvard he was on the varsity football squad in 1919. Before entering Harvard he was graduated from Clinton High school.

MRS. O'RIORDAN SPEAKS

It was virtually assured that Dr. Joseph Santosuosso of Boston would be designated for secretary of state, who was the Democratic candidate for that position two years ago, being the only Democrat on the state ticket to lose.

Timothy J. Collins of Holyoke was placed in nomination along with Dr. Santosuosso, Clement A. Riley of Norwood and Rep. Thomas A. Delmore of Lowell. Theodore A. Glynn of Boston, close friend of Gov. Curley, put up Dr. Santosuosso's name and in doing so paid a graceful tribute to Charles F. Hurley. Glynn had nominated Treasurer Hurley's opponent, Joseph L. Hurley, at the opening session Friday.

The first ballot for secretary of state nominated Dr. Santosuosso with 358 votes to 62 for Collins, 67 for Riley and 73 for Delmore.

In order to clear the road for renomination of Atty. Gen. Dever, Senator Francis M. McKeown of Springfield, former Senator Joseph Finnegan of Boston and Representative J. Kiley of Boston withdrew from the race.

Dever was left unopposed and was renominated by acclamation.

Nominating speeches for candidates for state treasurer came next. The first name submitted was that of Rep. Daniel J. Honan of Winthrop. Next came Charles Archambeault of New Bedford, Frederick R. Sullivan of Boston, Henry C. Gill of Brockton and James C. Scanlan of Somerville, Democratic floor leader in the State Senate.

Former Civil Service Commissioner James M. Hurley of Marlboro withdrew, as did Paul E. Soullers of Worcester and Frank J. Tibert of Dorchester.

With 553 votes cast, 227 were necessary for victory, and Senator Scanlan received 310. Honan had 25, Archambeault 57, Sullivan 143 and Gill 18.

Walsh was placed in nomination by Rep. John Wenzler of South Boston. The delegates refused to waste further time over any nominating speech for Buckley and yelled "vote, vote, vote." Of the total vote cast Walsh received 3 votes, Buckley 598.

Walsh, addressing the convention, announced his intention of contesting the nomination in the September primary.

His statement was greeted with boos and cat calls. Walsh declared he received 115,000 votes against Buckley when he opposed him before, "yet some of you fellows could not get five votes in your own district."

The convention ended at 6:12 p. m.

The final hour of the convention was marked by tumult making it almost impossible to hear speakers and markedly slowing up balloting.

Failure of loud speaking equipment made it difficult for the chairman, Leo Harlow, to maintain order and by the end of the day his voice was gone.

In their enthusiasm to endorse Buckley and Dever by acclamation, delegates crowded into aisles toward the front of the hall and scrambled over reporters' benches and onto the platform, shouting and cheering.

17 ELECTORS NAMED

The 17 presidential electors chosen by the convention are:

Michael J. Daly, Lawrence; Grace N. Hoey, of Fall River; J. Henry Goguen of Leominster; Stanley M. Wisniski of Chelsea; William H. Heuchey of Woburn; Mrs. Mabel Worthy of Boston; Thomas F. Moriarty of Springfield; Michael F. Troy of Stockbridge; Mrs. Mary Mahoney of Worcester; Mrs. Philip Carr of Peabody; John F. Fitzgerald of Boston; Charles F. J. Harrington of Watertown; Helen Buckley of Abington; Lawrence F. Crowley of Brockton; Mrs. Mary E. McGoldrick of Somerville; Leo M. Harlow of Easton and Clemantina Langone of Boston.

Those are the names that will appear on the ballot in the November election and against which the party voters will mark their crosses in voting for President and Vice-President.

THANKS for the nomination! Lieutenant-Governor nominee-elect Phillip J. Philbin of Clinton, chosen to run on the Democratic ticket with Charles F. Hurley.

HIGH OFFICIAL OF HOOD CULT, 2 AIDS, HELD

"Brigadier-General" Wilbur Robinson Is Charged With Kidnaping and Flogging

By LOU WEDEMAR
Copyright, 1936, by Universal service

Detroit, Mich., June 6 (US)—"Brigadier General" Wilbur Robinson, one of the highest ranking "Black Legion" officers in Michigan, was held in $50,000 bail here today on a charge of kidnaping and flogging Robert Penlan of Ecorse, a suburb. Two aids of Robinson, the most important "Legion" figure yet arrested in the state-wide investigation of the terrorist cult, were also held.

So far as is known, only two Michigan "Legion" members rank with Robinson in the semi-military setup. They are Arthur Lupp, a state organizer, and "Mr. Peg Leg," an as yet unidentified man believed to be the real boss in the state.

One of the aides arraigned this afternoon with Robinson is Charles King, charged with maintaining a "Black Legion" arsenal.

A new Black Legion "death squad" operating across the Canadian border was being sought tonight, with authorities promising arrests "very soon" in connection with the death of Roy D. Pitcock.

"Colonel" Harvey Davis, apparently a subordinate of Robinson, and held with Dayton Dean, confessed two-gun "slayer" executioner of Charles A. Poole, on a charge of murder, is to be grilled on Pitcock's death.

Police Commissioner Rutledge charged that he had found proof that Pitcock, at first believed a suicide, had been flogged and then lynched.

Ray Markland, aide to Detroit's prosecutor, Duncan McCrea, was suspended from duty today pending an inquiry into charges that he attended "legion" meetings in Highland Park.

POLITICAL PARASITES AND THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

IT HAS BEEN maintained, and with a good deal of truth, that a large proportion of politicians are men who have failed in all other walks of life.

These gentry are successful at only one occupation—as PARASITES ON THE PUBLIC PAYROLL.

Their jobs and their political interests are always paramount to the public welfare because they know that if they did not have their political jobs THEY WOULD NOT HAVE ANY JOB.

Senator Schwellenbach, of the State of Washington, is a very good illustration of this type of office holder.

He has a record of complete failure in every business he essayed until he fastened himself like a distended leech on the public purse.

Before he became a public parasite—a fever tick on the body politic—he went into the laundry business and made an utter failure of it.

HIS stockholders and supporters lost their money in his so-called SUPERIOR SERVICE LAUNDRIES, INC.

The superior service was to Schwellenbach apparently—certainly not to the public and not to the stockholders.

As a matter of fact, in 1927 the Secretary of State of Washington CANCELLED THE PERMIT OF THE SCHWELLENBACH CORPORATION AND HALTED ITS SALE OF STOCK.

This ill-managed laundry venture caused Schwellenbach to be disparagingly alluded to as "LOUIE THE LAUNDRYMAN," and it was further intimated that the only things really cleaned by Louie were the stockholders.

They were washed up thoroughly.

Furthermore, the Washington Senator, before he became a cootie on the public pate, was also president of the PACIFIC ALLPREST COMPANY, which, after it had flopped, later blossomed out as the WESTERN PROSPERITY COMPANY.

Another of the Schmellenbad catch-penny companies was the ASSURED THRIFT AGENCY, INC.

C. H. Bower, state supervisor of securities, said of these Schwellenbach companies, in a report to the Portland Better Business Bureau on August 2, 1929:

"THE HISTORY OF THESE COMPANIES IS ONE OF CONSTANT STOCK MANIPULATION OF ONE KIND OR ANOTHER."

SCHWELLENBACH was a flat failure in the matter of laundry companies and thrift companies and prosperity companies, or at least the thrift and prosperity were for Schwellenbach, and not for the stockholders.

So this stock-jobbing gentleman then turned from soap suds to beer suds.

In 1933, he organized out of the wreck of his other companies the PILSENER BREWING COMPANY, of Seattle.

IT COLLAPSED IN 10 MONTHS.

On February 28, 1934, a petition of involuntary bankruptcy was filed by its creditors, who alleged it had assigned its property "WITH INTENT TO HINDER, DELAY OR DEFRAUD ITS CREDITORS."

The PACIFIC BROTHERHOOD INVESTMENT COMPANY, a banking enterprise in which Schwellenbach was interested, both as an officer and attorney, also went to the wall in 1931.

The Washington Senator admitted in a letter to the Secretary of State that the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company and its subsidiary banks were in SUCH BAD CONDITION THAT THE STOCKHOLDERS OF ONE BANK COULD NOT BE AIDED WITHOUT INJURING THE DEPOSITORS OF OTHERS.

MOST OF THE depositors in these banks were WORKINGMEN and their deposits were only saved by the Seattle Clearing House Association.

In the Laundries Company, WIDOWS AND WORKINGMEN trusted Schwellenbach.

When one of these widows, a Mrs. Stella H. Simpson, of Tacoma, pleaded with Schwellenbach for the return of her money invested, Schwellenbach dismissed her plea bluntly and wrote a rigmarolean letter full of technical evasion.

LET US ASSUME THAT THERE WAS NO PARTICULAR CROOKEDNESS INVOLVED IN THE FAILURE OF THESE SCHMELLENBAD COMPANIES—at any rate, there was obvious incompetence.

And it resulted in THE STOCKHOLDERS AND SUPPORTERS OF THE SCHWELLENBACH ENTERPRISES LOSING THEIR MONEY.

Senator Schwellenbach has proved himself a disastrous FAILURE in everything except as a POLITICAL PARASITE. In that he is fairly successful, because all that is necessary there is for him to TALK and not accomplish anything.

In fact, all he has to do is PROMISE and never perform; all he has to do is to violate the Constitution along with the other members of the Looking Black and Schmellenbad Committee.

All he has to do is to tell OTHER PEOPLE what to do, although he has amply proved that he is incapable of DOING ANYTHING HIMSELF except ensconce himself snugly in a soft berth and cling tightly to the public epidermis like a political bedbug.

SENATOR SCHWELLENBACH in himself is as unimportant, however, as he is unsavory. Yet he is typical of the POLITICAL PARASITE.

It is to this kind of DANGEROUSLY INCOMPETENT politicians that the Socialists in Congress and in the Administration propose to entrust the great business interests of the nation!

Government management means POLITICAL MANAGEMENT.

Government management means MANAGEMENT BY POLITICIANS.

Government management of business means, consequently, management by men, some of whom have made destructive failures of their own businesses in private life, and who would consequently make GREATER FAILURES of the larger business of the nation if they had anything to do with it.

Business cannot be managed by government as an ABSTRACTION. It must be managed by the INDIVIDUALS who constitute the government.

AND IF THOSE INDIVIDUALS ARE AND HAVE BEEN FAILURES, AND CHEAP FAILURES, AND SOME OF THEM PERHAPS CROOKED FAILURES, THE BUSINESSES THEY ESSAY TO MANAGE WILL BE FAILURES.

And when those businesses are failures, the results will be seen in DIMINISHED PRODUCTION, DIMINISHED EMPLOYMENT, DIMINISHED WEALTH, AND DIMINISHED PROSPERITY.

If the Schwellenbachs and such could not even wash a soiled shirt successfully, which even a Chinaman can do, they surely cannot conduct the great businesses of the nation.

'VETS' CONTEST ON COMMANDER FOR BAY STATE

Pittsfield Convention Expects Lively Tilt Between Miller And Nicoll for the Post

A lively tilt for the honor of being state commander of the Massachusetts Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars promises to make this coming state encampment interesting.

It will be held at Pittsfield, June 18 to 21, inclusive.

James E. Van Zandt, commander-in-chief, who has been touring the Orient, will be on hand, it is expected.

The contest for the commandership will be between Department Senior Vice Commander Joel L. Miller of Dorchester and Liaison Officer Charles P. Nicoll of Randolph.

Miller is a practising attorney in Boston, Nicoll an X-ray expert. Both have heavy backing.

There will be other contests. Junior Vice-Commander Patrick S. O'Donnell of South Boston is the only man to announce himself as candidate for the post of senior vice-commander, but reports have it he will have two opponents. He is motor vehicle inspector in western Massachusetts.

For the post of junior vice-commander, five candidates are in the field, and probably there will be a few more before it is all over.

The five out in the open are James J. Hennessey of Woburn, Martin J. J. O'Donnell, Emilio Martino and Wilfred E. Jacobs of Boston and Harry O. Holmes of Plymouth and Rockland.

Judge Advocate Edward P. Shaw, 3rd, of Quincy, has stated he won't seek re-election or any other departmental office.

Quartermaster-Adjutant Henry V. O'Day, serving his sixth term, and Rev. Wallace E. Hayes of Rutland Heights, serving his fifteenth term as chaplain, are unopposed right now.

Dr. Harry C. Burrell, Gloucester, will serve another term as surgeon if the delegates want him, according to pre-convention gossip. Some departmental politicians are mentioning Dr. James C. Keenan

FIVE IN DEATH QUIZ

Cambridge Case Gets Hearing

As a climax to a week's investigation of circumstances surrounding the death of Miss Grace Lees, 50, a Cambridge secretary, Cambridge Police Chief Timothy Leahy will summon two women and three men to his office today, the Boston Sunday Advertiser learned yesterday.

"I am determined to have a showdown in this case," Leahy said.

Those to be summoned by Leahy, it was learned, include two waitresses and a man employed in a Porter sq. tavern where Miss Lees is reported to have spent some time the afternoon and evening before her body was found, and two other men, one of whom is reported to have been in her company.

Miss Lees' body was found in a barn on Roseland street, Cambridge, on Memorial Day. Dr. David Dow, medical examiner, said death was due to natural causes.

Her sister, Mrs. Marion Horation, demanded police investigate the case.

Chief Leahy said Mrs. Horation would be asked to attend the hearing today. He said a Cambridge attorney, engaged to represent Miss Lee's reputed companion, would also be present.

It is possible, Leahy said, that the case may be called to the attention of the district attorney.

MISSING BANK TELLER FOUND ON WEST COAST

Indictment Sought Here From Federal Grand Jury in the Disappearance of $25,000

A transcontinental search by G-men, which led from Salem to Newark and thence to California, was disclosed yesterday when it was learned by the Boston Sunday Advertiser that Claude H. Knowlton, missing teller of the Merchants National Bank of Salem, would shortly be taken into custody.

An indictment, charging him with embezzlement, has already been requested from a Federal Grand Jury in Boston by United States Attorney Francis J. W. Ford.

Action followed an investigation by government agents into the disappearance of more than $25,000 from the funds of the bank.

Four Department of Justice agents, a bank auditor and Assistant Cashiers Albert H. Barnett and Ralph Porter had appeared before the federal grand jury.

Inquiry into Knowlton's private affairs revealed that his home at 6 Clough street, Lynn, which he bought in 1923 for $6500 is mortgaged for $4000.

chant men of any nationality carrying passengers.

SECRET RULING

After declaring the Wilson administration in August, 1914, decreed loans by American banks to belligerent governments would be considered unneutral, the report said:

"In October, 1914, the Department (of State), in a secret ruling officially revealed only to J. P. Morgan & Co. and the National City Bank of New York, made an artificial distinction between loans and credits, permitting extension of the latter to belligerents.

"Although rumors of this change were published in the press at that time, no official statement was made until March 31, 1915, and meanwhile in an official letter of January 20, 1915, to the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Department failed to mention this distinction, thereby officially misinforming the Senate.

"The committee further is of the opinion that this secret distinction permitted the beginning of the war trade boom which later in 1915 produced a serious disbalance of American exports.

POWERLESS TO CHECK

"Such loans can not but profoundly affect the neutrality of mind and spirit of those holding them and when the responsibility for the sale of such loans is placed by a foreign belligerent in the hands of any one large banking group, as was done in the case of J. P. Morgan & Co. during the World War. The concentrated power and influence of such loans on the neutrality of public opinion can be greatly accentuated."

Burkan, Noted N.Y. Lawyer, Is Dead

New York, N. Y., June 6 (US)—Nathan Burkan, nationally prominent attorney, died suddenly today at his home on Kings Point road, Great Neck, L. I., of acute indigestion.

The lawyer and politician, who was 57 years old, is survived by Mrs. Burkan and a son, Nathan.

At his office it was announced that funeral services for Mr. Burkan would be held at Temple Emanuel Tuesday morning. Pall bearers will be announced tomorrow.

Mr. Burkan was in good health as late as Thursday, when he spent a busy day in his office.

British Troops Fire on Arabs

Jerusalem, June 6 (US)—British troops and police tonight intensified their efforts to crush the Arab anti-Jewish insurrection as new clashes broke out in Jerusalem and the Mediterranean seaport city of Haifa, leaving more dead and wounded.

In Jerusalem an undetermined number of Arab casualties resulted from a fierce battle between the British and rioting natives. Heavy detachments of troops opened fire on the rioters after a detail of police had been stoned from rooftops.

Arab snipers shot at the troops and police during the fight, but the rioters were finally dispersed.

ANN MARSTERS IN HOLLYWOOD

Episode One

LIGHTS! — CAMERA! — ROLL 'EM!

SUSPENDED ACTION—Director Lloyd Bacon, Marion Davies and Roscoe Karns (seated at table) glance off scene as sound man shouts last-minute suggestion before going into a scene at the Cosmopolitan studio for "Cain and Mabel," musical comedy in which Miss Davies and Clark Gable are co-starred. Karns in this film is the press agent who engineers Miss Davies' rise from waitress to stardom in a Broadway show. Clark Gable has the role of a pugilist.

STAR—Here is a striking closeup of Marion Davies, who stars with Clark Gable in "Cain and Mabel." Miss Davies, says Ann Marsters, is the girl who "has music wherever she goes," for an orchestra is always on the set to entertain, between scenes, the performers and their guests. And visitors are plentiful, for it is something of an event when Miss Davies is making a picture.

GIRL WRITER TAKES PEEK BEHIND SCENES IN STUDIO

The Boston Sunday Advertiser presents herewith the first chapter in a series of intimate glimpses into the life of filmland's capital—"ANN MARSTERS IN HOLLYWOOD." Miss Marsters, noted feature writer on the staff of the Boston Sunday Advertiser and Boston Evening American, is being given entree to all of the studios, and is writing her stories from behind the scenes in the land of make-believe. She will interview all of the famous stars of screenland. These stories will appear daily in the Boston Evening American, beginning tomorrow, and in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Follow "Ann Marsters in Hollywood" and get an intimate knowledge of filmland from behind the scenes, and have a personal chat daily with your favorite star.

By ANN MARSTERS

Hollywood, California, June 6—A new adventure is on its way. A new world is about to unfold . . .

But there are doors to pass through before you can reach this new adventure; this new world.

The first is the wide, police-guarded gateway that leads to the studio. Gaze around, after you have entered, and tell yourself that at last you are within the high white walls that surround this land of make believe.

Maybe you are a little breathless, at first, because everything is on such a large scale. If you didn't know that this was the Warner Brothers lot, you would think it a whole city of white buildings and broad streets.

You can see beautiful girls in slacks wandering about, their faces the deep tan of camera makeup. Now you can recognize a face that you have seen many a time on the screen of your local theater. It's a star—in person.

Two of Greatest Stars Are Here: Marion Davies and Clark Gable

(I must tell you right away, that, to get the fullest possible enjoyment out of a studio visit, you should smile to yourself every now and then, while you think of all the people "back home" who would so like to be here. And you should remember what fun it will be to tell them about it when you return.)

A special treat is in store for you—if you will follow me. I am headed for the Cosmopolitan Studio, which is within the Warner Brothers lot. I am headed for a set on which two of Hollywood's greatest stars are working. One is Marion Davies. The other, Clark Gable.

The door to this adventure is a very large, heavy door. A red warning light is just beside it. When that light is flashed on, it means that no one can enter, because a scene is being "shot." And not a murmur can creep through that massive door.

Now the coast is clear. The door rolls back—and . . .

But this suspense is terrible. For a minute I can see nothing—only a great blaze of light about 50 feet away.

I blink—and people and objects begin to have meaning.

There are two figures in the midst of the lighted space. One has a lovely, vivid face and shining blonde hair. It is Marion Davies, of course.

The other—I can see only his back—but I know it is Clark Gable.

They are standing in the corridor of what might be a large building. It is a piece of life built within the four walls of the studio, but everything that happens in it is make-believe.

It doesn't seem unreal, however, until you look around at all the paraphernalia of the set — cameras, floor lamps, suspended lamps, microphones—and all manner of construction that is part of the picture-making process.

The picture that is now being made is "Cain and Mabel." (You can figure out for yourself who plays which). Incidentally, Marion Davies is a very hard-working girl, for as soon as she completed her latest picture, "Hearts Divided," she rushed into the "Cain and Mabel" production.

Spirit of Friendliness Marks Studio; Music While They Work

Now the studio is humming with activity—and you can sense that it's a happy kind of humming. Oh, there is so much work to be done, and so many people to do it—electricians, cameramen, sound experts, carpenters, script girl.

But no one seems to be at all burdened by weariness, for there is a spirit, here, of friendliness and light-heartedness. Someone whispers in my ear that it is the typical Marion Davies set atmosphere.

Suddenly, music begins to play—gay, lilting music that swings into the tune of "Let's Make Hay While the Sun Shines."

Yes—"she shall have music wherever she goes." There is always an orchestra on the set on which Marion Davies is working. A piano, a violin, a 'cello and a xylophone — and the musicians are at hand all day to entertain, between scenes, the performers and their guests.

And visitors are plentiful, for it is something of an event when Miss Davies is making a picture. Even professionals—directors and producers—like to drop in, now and then, for a chat.

Today there are quite a few people watching the goings on. Mr. E. B. Hatrick, president of Cosmopolitan Films, wiry and alert, has stopped by to say hello and to wander about among the innumerable lights and cameras.

Visitor From Everyday World Sees Wonders and Miracles

But I am sure that these people can't appreciate it nearly as much as I can. To me, it is still a stronge new world where all sorts of wonders and miracles are performed—for the benefit of that everyday world that I have almost forgotten.

We must be quiet for a while. Marion Davies and Clark Gable are rehearsing a scene together.

Director Lloyd Bacon (of whom I shall tell you more presently) sits on the sidelines; watches intently and offers a few suggestions. They are carried out quickly and without blunders.

Bacon nods his approval. He says:

"Let's take it."

So we arrive at the climactic point in the life of a motion picture. It is the point to which all the long, careful preparation has been leading; the point when the red light at the sound stage door is flashed, and more blinding white lights are centered on the stage. It is when everyone stops breathing. It is when a scene is being "shot."

Lights, Microphone and Camera Held in Readiness for Big Moment

The electricians are ready. They need only the word "lights" from Director Bacon. (The proper lighting and focusing has already been decided upon, with Miss Davies' and Mr. Gable's stand-ins as the targets.)

The young man tending the odd-looking microphone is ready. It is a round microphone attached to the end of a long arm or "boom," and it is stretching out over the heads of the actors.

The man peering into the gigantic camera (he's assistant to head-cameraman George Barnes) is waiting for the words: "Camera. Roll 'em"—and the camera will "roll" into action.

"Quiet, please."

Words Fly Fast and Furiously When "Dancer" and "Pug" Collide

Not a sound answers these words from Director Bacon. Marion Davies and Clark Gable step out of the set for a last-minute retouching of their make-up.

Now they are ready.

"Lights! Camera! Roll 'em!"

The scene is played at a very fast tempo. Miss Davies walks quickly from one end of the corridor, and Gable from the other. They collide, very violently. They stand there, saying a lot of harsh words in a very excited manner.

And the words go something like this:

Marion: "YOU. You cheap pug."

It seems that Clark (the pug) has given an interview to a newspaper about Marion (the dancer). She (the dancer) is furious about it.

Marion: "Any man who would print such trash! . . ."

Clark: "I printed it. Why, I didn't say a word about you—"

Marion: (mimicking him) "Always have I wanted to meet the perfect girl—" (She threatens him.) "If you ever say another word about me, I'll not only have your job, but enough of your teeth to supply all the Elks in Peoria."

Clark: (still protesting) "And the funniest part of it all was them calling you a dancer."

Marion: (dangerously) "What's the matter with my dancing?"

Clark: "If you're a dancer—then I'm all wet."

Mr. Gable Is Going to Be a Prophet, But Here Director Bacon Calls "Cut"

Careful, Mr. Gable. She is going to make you a prophet. You are going to be REALLY "wet." She is, in fact, going to throw a large glass of water over you.

But that happens in another scene. The director calls "Cut."

"We'll do it again," he says.

And Marion and Clark relax and giggle a little over the scene, while a hairdresser rushes up to give a few expert pats to the Davies' curls—and Gable's hair, which is purposely falling over his forehead, must be arranged to fall "just so."

Then the scene, which is less than a minute long, is taken again—and once again. But that is all. None of the endless and tedious retake after retake that is usually necessary on a movie set. Miss Davies does not believe in that — and neither does Lloyd Bacon.

Now I suppose you think that that scene is over and done with; all ready for the "cutter" who will select the best negative for the final showing.

But no indeed; the players are not by any means through with this particular sequence—for every sequence is divided into long shots and closeups. They must repeat the same words and the same action while separate head closeups are photographed, first of Marion, then of Gable, then of Marion and Gable together.

These are "cut in" when the picture is finally assembled, for it is this combination of long shots and closeups that enhances the drama and is so much a part of motion picture technique.

Now, while lights and cameras are being re-adjusted, a distinguished foursome is having a discussion of some sort. They are seated close together on canvas chairs—those typical movie-set chairs, with the owner's name across the back. And the names read: Marion Davies, Clark Gable, Lloyd Bacon, Orry-Kelly.

Orry-Kelly is one of the foremost stylists in Hollywood—and it is he who has designed Miss Davies' gowns for "Cain and Mabel."

Right now she is wearing a dream of a suit. She has stepped out of Orry-Kelly's imagination, representing from head to toe the height of the thing we call "smartness" or "style."

About the suit: It's of a deep grey material that looks like velvet. The coat is fitted tightly around the waist, and over the hips there's a short, flaring peplum with a band of fox fur all the way around the edge. There are buttons down the front of the coat, and a pert bow ties just under the chin. With it, Miss Davies wears a tiny hat perched at a saucy angle over her blonde curls.

Director Lloyd Bacon Enjoys Enviable Reputation in Filmdom

Now we would like very much to have a word or two with Director Lloyd Bacon. We already know quite a lot about him—which makes us all the more anxious to know more.

We know, for instance, that Bacon is considered "the best commercial director in Hollywood." And that has a very important meaning. It means that Lloyd Bacon pictures are successes at the box office, and that he works at high speed with grand imagination.

As for his history, we know that his father was the famous Frank Bacon, who wrote and starred in "Lightnin'." His mother, Jane Bacon, was also on the stage, so it was natural that their son should turn to the theater for his career.

Bacon was an actor on Broadway and in Hollywood before he turned to directing. He joined Warner Brothers as a director in 1925—and he's been with those studios ever since. "Cain and Mabel" will be his first picture for Cosmopolitan studios.

Mr. Bacon, we found, is a very charming person, with a lot of interesting things to say.

We asked him, first, about "Cain and Mabel" and how he thought the picture-public was going to like it.

All Elements of Good Comedy, and Stars Are "Money in the Bank"

"Well," he began, eyeing us with a keen but kindly look, "it has all the elements of a good comedy. There's a little bit of everything in it—for there are a lot of ingredients that go into the making of a good show, just as you must have all the ingredients to make a good cake.

"Because of Marion Davies and Clark Gable, we're starting off with money in the bank, so to speak.

"And that's as far as I or anyone else can prophesy about any picture.

"You see," he went on, "it's the audiences that make a picture a success. They find something in it that we didn't even know was there—and bang! the picture clicks."

Bacon has directed at least one of every type of film that you can imagine, but his success with comedies in particular has been phenomenal.

We had an idea that comedies were usually played at a very

Wife Shares His Joy

LIFE TALE TOLD OF DEM. CHOICE FOR GOVERNOR

(The Boston Sunday Advertiser begins today the colorful life story of Charles F. Hurley, Treasurer of the Commonwealth, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, already hailed as the next Governor of Massachusetts—and a man of politics remarkable for his personal, lasting friendships. These articles will continue tomorrow and subsequently in the Boston Evening American.)

By PAUL WHELTON

Long, long ago, folks began to be fooled about the bland smile of Charles Francis Hurley. Long, long ago they began to tell him he couldn't do things. So he has continued to smile and do them.

Today he stands as the nominee of the Democratic party for governor, the highest executive office in the state. They told him he couldn't do it. So he smiled and he did—in a ratio that amazed even his closest friends.

Not yet 43 years old, the Democratic nominee, unheard of in state politics little more than five years ago, is on the threshold of a victory to which, even within a few months, he was told it was folly to aspire.

But he smiled and went them one better. He told them he would win on the first ballot, and he did—smilingly.

Orphaned Early

Such has been the pattern of Charles Francis Hurley's life since that November day in 1893 when he came into the world and gazed around and wondered, perhaps, what it was and what it held for him.

It held much, in a baby's meed, for five years, when his mother died, and this left a void in a vague, misty way. He knew more of such sudden voids later, with his father's passing, because then he was in college and college, for him, was suddenly terminated through necessity.

They told him, sorrowfully, that he could have no more standardized education. But after time had softened his grief over his last parent's death and he had gone to work, he smiled again and took up the challenge. He went back to college, this time in the law school and on his own earnings.

Today his political opponents, and his well-meaning friends who did not before realize the makeup of Charles Hurley, understand that the most dangerous move to make is to offer him a challenge.

What disarms his opponents but wins him the friends who have flocked to him in amazing numbers during campaigns and elections is his informality, his natural graciousness and always that engaging smile which masks his determined nature when he sets out toward an objective.

Personal contact with men and women of the Commonwealth seemingly has been all that Hurley has needed to convince the electorate of his sincerity; that and his steadily lengthening record in which no flaw has yet been picked by the baffled opposition.

Great Vote-Getter

In vote-getting popularity, political observers aligned with no particular camp, class him with United States Senator David I. Walsh, although the senior senator from Massachusetts has been in public life since long before Charlie Hurley was in high school.

Descended from a genial race, born of sturdy stock, brought up an average boy in an average Cambridge home, the Democratic nominee has remained among his neighbors, despite his steady advance—and even his children now attend the same grade school which he attended three decades ago, and worship in the same church where he worshipped, and still does, before an altar which his father built.

None of this has ever been mentioned publicly by the man acclaimed as the next governor of Massachusetts, but it is known, the situation exists, and the simple citizen always has warmed to his kind.

There will be many true stories of Charlie Hurley told between now and election time in the fall—and the majority of them probably will have to do with his ability to win friends and hold them and with his faculty, oftentimes, of carrying their burdens.

Several years ago the late Henry F. Lehan was city treasurer of Cambridge and became the storm center of a municipal political battle when Mayor Wendell R. Rockwood sought to remove him.

Lehan had many friends when the city treasurer's course was smooth sailing, and one of these friends was Charles F. Hurley. But when the days became dark for Lehan, scores of these associates, because of what they believed to be political expediency, deserted him.

Sticks by Friend

At the height of the battle, the loyalists decided to give Lehan a testimonial dinner and defy the enemy. Hurley was asked to preside at the dinner and he immediately agreed. Hurley's friends were aghast. They told him if he took an active part it would ruin him. But he merely smiled, his enigmatic smile when challenged.

"Henry Lehan is my friend," he said. "I won't run away. If I desert him it will be a confession that friendship has no meaning."

Going much farther back, the scene finds Charlie Hurley a football guard on the Boston College team and the squad headed out of town for a Saturday game.

But there was a misunderstanding as to train times and most of the squad missed the train. Only 10 members of the team reached the rival field with the team manager. The rules of football read:

"The game shall be played by two teams of 11 men each."

There was nothing to do but put in the manager, and he weighed only 118 pounds. He was a doughty lad, however, and he went in. Charlie Hurey, the heavy, powerful guard, moved himself over from guard to tackle at the kickoff and whispered to the featherweight:

"Go through the motions, kid," he said, "but lay back out of trouble. I can handle it."

The little end came out of the battle with his hair mussed, but little the worse for wear.

When the lads got back to the dressing room they found that someone had been through the lockers and had taken all their money. The big football player, who later was to have less difficulty in raising millions in quick state loans as treasurer of Massachusetts, took hold of the situation and borrowed enough money to get them back to Boston.

Charlie Hurley was still smiling.

CHARLES F. HURLEY and his wife shared the joy of his gubernatorial nomination together at Springfield yesterday, and broad were their smiles as they acknowledged the Democratic convention's vociferous acclamation

HURLEY AIDED BY WIFE'S PLEA

By WILLIAM C. CONWAY

Mrs. Hurley made one speech for her husband.

It was made to friends and neighbors in Ward 9, Cambridge, the Hurleys' home district.

It must have been a pretty good speech because State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, victor in the convention contest for the gubernatorial nomination at Springfield, had a competitor from the same ward but carried his ward.

"Well, it wasn't a political speech," said Mrs. Hurley last night, at her home, 57 Fresh Pond lane.

"I simply told them I believed my husband would make a good governor for the state."

Candidate-for-Governor Hurley and his wife arrived home at 6:45 last night and found four happy children awaiting them with kisses and bear hugs.

Congratulations came from every source. One telegram was from James Roosevelt. It read:

"Dear Charlie: It was a great fight, well handled, and you deserved to win your splendid victory. We are all tickled and send you our very best congratulations. Get a good rest. Am looking forward to being on the firing line for you in the coming months. JIMMY ROOSEVELT."

Both Conventions Will Miss Repeal Planks, Says 'Bugs'

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

What wa wil miss in the 1936 conventions are the repeal planks. They were good talking points. When you arrived at the point you changed the subject.

Five minutes after prohibition became a law we saw it was a failure. But you couldn't scotch the snake while the bootleggers were snaking the Scotch.

In 1920, 1924 and 1928 both parties regarded the liquor question as poison. Especially the stuff that was mixed in the bathtub.

* * *

We would like to hear one of those knock-down, drag-em-out orators who got thirsty talking about the terrors of rum.

99th Class Day At Colby Junior

New London, N. H., June 6—Class Day exercises of the graduating class of Colby Junior College were held here yesterday afternoon as part of the 99th Commencement of the college.

The address of welcome was made by Miss Frances Palmer of Providence, R. I. The "class reading" was the joint authorship of Miss Nancy Mitchell of Glen Ridge, N. J., and Miss Althea R. Shinners of Brookline, Mass., daughter of Arthur Shinners of the Boston Sunday Advertiser and Evening American staff.

Parish to Honor Msgr. Haberlin

The silver anniversary of the ordination of the Right Rev. Msgr. Richard Haberlin, vicar general of the diocese and permanent parish priest of St. Peter's church, Dorchester, will be celebrated next Wednesday.

A mass of thanksgiving will be sung in the church in the morning.

'ANN MARSTERS IN HOLLYWOOD

fast tempo, but Mr. Bacon said, reasonably enough, that the pace of a comedy depends entirely upon the situations it contains, and some of the most amusing scenes are played at a very slow pace.

But when the tempo is fast, Bacon does not attempt to "space the laughs," when he thinks there is one, so that subsequent dialogue will not be drowned out. You can do that on the stage, of course, where you can hear the laughter of the audience. But in the movies . . .

Mr. Bacon's answer to that problem was:

"If, because of laughter, the audience didn't hear a word of dialogue—that would be a swell picture."

Stars, Like Gold, Are Discovered, Many Times by the Audience

We came to the subject of "talent" and Bacon mentioned the 150 dancing girls that will appear in "Cain and Mabel"—(it's a musical film).

"Out of those one hundred and fifty girls," he said, "or out of any large group of dancers or extras in Hollywood, there may be about two in each group who, if given the opportunity, would click and become stars.

"But who is going to take the chance of giving them that opportunity?

"Of course, Hollywood is a great gambler, although it tries to be wary. It takes chances and frequently loses. Like a gambler, it puts it on black and it turns up red—and like a gambler, Hollywood says, 'Well, I had a hunch to play it on red.'

"New talent," he added, "is like gold—it's discovered. And very often it's discovered accidentally—not by Hollywood, but by the audiences. Again, they see something in a person that Hollywood had no idea was there. That person clicks—and becomes a star."

There Is no Recipe for Success— Now It's Time for Sandwiches

Yes—in Hollywood you never can tell what's going to happen next. It's a see-sawey place and only a handful of stars remain firmly "up." The rest may go down with a jolt any day, while a new face suddenly shoots to the top.

"I have no recipe on how to break into movies," said Mr. Bacon. "If I should try it now, I wouldn't know how to go about it, and I should probably fail as so many others have failed."

The subject of Hollywood failures is oh, such a sad subject. Happily, nothing more was said of it—for it is now 4 o'clock.

And 4 o'clock means—on a Marion Davies set—time for sandwiches and coca-cola.

(Ann Marsters has a sandwich and a spirited conversation with Clark Gable in his dressing room at the Cosmopolitan Studio and tells about it in Monday's Boston Evening American. This will be the first of a series of intimate interviews with motion picture celebrities.)

LIFE TERM FOR MAINE SLAYER

Augusta, Me., June 6—Life imprisonment, mandatory under the law, will be imposed on James H. Folsom, 35—year-old bespectacled itinerant Skowhegan farm hand, alleged confessed slayer of two young girls, in court Tuesday.

Yesterday, Folsom, on parole from a reformatory sentence involving another young girl, pleaded guilty in superior court to an indictment charging him with the murder of seven-year-old Mary Proulx of Waterville a month ago.

The farm-hand, according to police, has also confessed to the murder of Annie K Knight, 12, of Fairfield, whose body mutilated similarly to that of the Proulx child, was found last October.

Both children were bound, gagged, assaulted and strangled.

Folsom told Judge Albert Beliveau yesterday that his guilty plea was "voluntary" and it was accepted.

The alleged murderer was found sane by State Alienist Dr. Forrest C. Tyson.

Fish Receipts Near 6 Million

There were 114 vessels arriving at Boston Fish Pier last week, bringing 5,804,000 pounds of mixed, fresh groundfish, compared with 158 vessels and 7,265,100 pounds for the same week last year.

From January 1, to date, there have been 2766 vessels with 133,503,014 pounds, contrasted with 2,770 vessels and 134,302,000 pounds for a like period in 1935.

Wholesale dealers' prices yesterday:

Large cod, 5-6 cts. per lb.; market cod, bake, cusk, mackerel, 4-5; dabs, 3½-4¼; haddock, 6-7; gray soles, 6-7.

Quinn's Accounts Given Examination

Checks and accounts of J. Walter Quinn, one of the defendants named with former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan in the $250,000 equity suit brought by the City of Boston, were minutely examined yesterday in the courthouse by Richard D. Seamens, certified public accountant, in preparation for the resumption of the case tomorrow.

Others present at the examination, which took most of the day, were H. B. Simpson, representing the defense, and J. H. F. Calver representing the city.

MOTHER SAVES SON BUT FACES LOSS OF LIMB

Transfusions Given Heroine to Balk Amputation; Auto Hits Pole as Brakes Fail

While Mrs. Gertrude Reynold was she rushed her son, to save survived unnamed, Mrs. Catherine V. Buckley, 24, of Hollingsworth street, Mattapan was seriously injured yesterday when a runaway automobile in which they were seated crashed into a light pole on Parker Hill street, Roxbury.

Mrs. Buckley was pinned against the pole and her right leg nearly severed.

She was given several transfusions as doctors attempted to staunch the flow of blood while the top of the car was pried off to release her.

Mr. Reynold, at her son, William's home at 8 Hollingsworth street, awaiting the arrival of her husband, James Buckley, a fireman attached to Ladder 13 who was on duty at the Mattapan Square station. Mrs. Reynolds, in the front seat and Mrs. Buckley in the rear.

In some manner the brake slipped and the car began to roll down hill with rapidly increasing momentum.

Mrs. Buckley, thinking only of her self and her child, leaped out and was attempting to get into the front seat when the car crashed into a pole.

Her screams at the sound of the crash brought neighbors who, running to the scene, were horrified to find the young woman lying unconscious beside the wrecked car.

Lynch Pledges New Tax Slash

Begins a Probe Of the Relief Department

Another slash in the tax rate looms for Cambridge, Mayor John D. Lynch revealed yesterday.

The cut will become effective next year, if his plans to cut down welfare costs and amalgamate the street department wards, succeeds.

Already, eastern cities and towns are marveling at the feat of reducing the tax levy of the city from $41 to $40.50.

It was accomplished despite loss of $2,500,000 in taxable property through abatements and a total city deficit of $1,3 00.

Sweeping in action, Mayor Lynch yesterday began a probe of the welfare department to determine how many recipients actually require aid.

End Needless Doles

This was a preliminary step to weeding out inel gibles and as part of the program to end needless dole evils, he said.

At the same time he announced that plans are underway looking for consolidating the five street department wards into one. This move will allow the city to sell the vacated property for building purposes on which taxes could be assessed.

At his office in City Hall Mayor Lynch smoked a cigar and modestly told how he succeeded in accomplishing the almost impossible nowadays—reducing a city tax rate.

He dentally his friends and even his critics say that it was his financial sagacity that enabled him to do it.

"I made the tax rate cut possible by slashing the original estimates of various departments, to the tune of $1,500,000, without reducing salaries or laying anyone off," Mayor Lynch said. "Nor have we impaired the city service.

"I am going to cut the budget further in an effort to bring the rate down again next year.

"The cost of government has got to come down. It is stifling industry, especially our biggest one—the building business.

"I shall continue next year what I am doing this year—keeping every possible expenditure to its minimum and economizing in every department.

Meant Bankruptcy

"If we continue to impose such taxation, it will mean bankruptcy for the city.

"When I took office in January, serious inflation of our monetary system loomed. But its menace ended and it looks now as though the dollar is stabilized at its present value.

"That means there must be a real, radical reduction in city government costs, because people cannot afford to exist when a high taxation burden is placed on their shoulders."

The mayor criticized the present federal administration for its pauperizing program.

"The national regime is educating people who want to work, to go on relief roles. The current rule is that no one can get federal work unless he is on relief."

Amazing the welfare department of Cambridge which he considers the most important article for pruning of costs, the mayor said:

"Welfare Too High"

"Our welfare department is costing over one million and a quarter dollars a year. It is our biggest problem. Its normal maximum used to be $350,000 and even that was considered too high. Now it is three times that total.

"To continue the dole program in its present form is to convert many of our good citizens to Socialism and worse.

"I shall center my efforts from now on in reducing the costs. But I want to make it plain that the pruning will not be at the expense of recipients. For I shall not permit any person to go without the necessities of life."

Mayor Lynch was one of 12 children. He went to work at an early age. His life story parallels that of an Horatio Alger hero.

He rose from a modest station to city hall and from a humble worker to president of the Universal Trust Company and the North Cambridge Co-operative bank.

CAMBRIDGE MAYOR, John D. Lynch, is being congratulated because in his first term the city tax rate was reduced, and he promises further cuts next year.

Stokes' Parents 50 Years Wedded

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stokes, parents of Captain John S. Stokes of the state police, last night celebrated their golden anniversary.

They spent the day at home in Bristol road, Medfield receiving many floral gifts and congratulatory messages.

Fifty years ago they were married in the Saint Henry Church, Boston, by the late brother being the former Miss E. Lane.

Sergeant Thomas J. Stokes of the Cambridge police, and Joseph M. Stokes chief underwriter of the Federal Housing Administration, two other sons attended. Sister Clementine of St. Joseph's Order in Randolph and Mrs. Charles Wickham of Medfield are their daughters.

Actor's Calmness Averts Fire Panic

Dennis King, brilliant young English actor, stepped out of his role in the play, "The Postman Always Rings Twice" at the Selwyn Theatre yesterday afternoon to put the part of a real life hero in fiction, as what might have developed into a panic among the audience when a fire was discovered in a ventilator near the roof.

Ordering the lights up he said:

"You in the audience know what is going on better than I do. But if you stay, I promise you'll see the ending of a fine play."

Such calmness reassured the audience.

Price of Cream Drops One Cent

The price of heavy cream will drop one cent today, to 14 cents a half pint, in most Massachusetts producing districts, Joseph C. Cort, State Milk Board Administrator, announced yesterday.

The new price will be the lowest set this year. The decrease will not affect Berkshire, Franklin and Hampshire counties, Newburyport and Cape Cod, where there are separate systems of production.

Evictors Beaten By Cape Woman

North Truro, June 6. Despite friendless, 66-year-old Mrs. Frances Pianca successfully fought eviction last night.

While house wreckers removed furniture, windows and doors from the combination on general store and home she was maintained to the Cape Cod village, the elderly woman from a sick bed, defied them to oust her.

Even when State-Trooper Marshall T. Rippo arrested the woman, 35-year-old Antonio, former Truro postmaster for criminal trespass, she refused to surrender.

Last October, Manuel Marshall of Brockton, owner of the land on which the modest Pianca home rests, began efforts to remove her. Marshall said he wanted to sell his land.

The woman, 12 years a resident in the house, refused to leave despite even an eviction order and stayed despite removal last week of all her furniture except the cheap cot on which she lay ill of heart disease.

While she tossed restlessly last night in the bare, denuded house, police expressed hope that her son's appearance in Provincetown court tomorrow may settle the deadlock.

Symphony Music For Andrew Rites

Gloucester, June 7—As the slanting rays of the evening sun strike Our Lady of Good Voyage Church tomorrow night at 7.30 the deepest tone bell of the carillon given by the late Congressman A. Piatt Andrew, will commence to toll for half an hour to signalize the start of the Sunset Memorial Service for the mourned statesman.

The services will be conducted by Reverend Father Francesco G. Martin, pastor, Reverend Ralph A. Sherwood, of the First Baptist Church in Salem and Rabbi Albert Goldberg, of the Gloucester Synagogue.

Seated in the hall of the town Legion headquarters, facing a portrait of the late Congressman, will be representatives from the nation, state and town.

It was the wish of Congressman Andrew, who died Wednesday at his Gloucester home, that there be no regular funeral service, but that whatever ceremonies were held be non-sectarian, non-official without speeches, but accompanied by "good instrumental music well played."

In accordance with that request a symphony orchestra under the direction of Fabien Sevitzky will render selections.

Maxim Gorky Reported Dying

Moscow, June 6 (INS)—Maxim Gorky, famous Russian writer who was honored by having a Russian city renamed after him, was reported near death today from tuberculosis.

Gorky, regarded as a genius by many Soviet Russians, is one of the extremely few men in this country who has been permitted to criticize the Red government without punishment.

B. C. EXERCISES ALUMNI ARRIVE LAST 4 DAYS FOR TECH FETE

Commencement week of Boston College begins tonight at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Harrison ave. South End, where the Rev. Francis E. Low, S.J., professor of philosophy at Boston College will deliver the baccalaureate address to the graduating class.

Fr. Low was himself graduated from Boston College 25 years ago this month. He is widely known as a teacher and writer and is regarded as an authority on Communism.

Tomorrow Alumni Day will see hundreds of former students returning to the college for annual Holy Cross-Boston College baseball game and the dedication of the Rev. Louis A. Gallagher, S.J., president of the college, of the new gate on Beacon street.

Class Day will be observed on Tuesday and commencement exercises will be held on Wednesday.

Cardinal O'Connell will await the degrees and the principal address will be by Hon. Joseph F. MacWade, Lieut. Gov. of the State of Massachusetts.

'400' ARBITER BARES LIST OF NEW DEBBIES

156 Hub Beauties Plunge Into Social Whirl as Their Names Are Certified Officially

Boston society, a younger generation officially entered the social whirl yesterday, following publication of the new set of debutantes for the 1936-1937 season.

The set, containing 156 names of daughters of representative Greater Boston families, was compiled by Mrs Richard Lawrence of Beacon street, newly appointed arbiter of the debutante calendar.

Most of the new debs to make their bow to society were Miss Jean [illegible], daughter of Mrs Philip Dumaine of Commonwealth avenue. Oldest U. S. Police Chief Used Fists on Criminals

Burckes of Lynn Tells How They Quelled 'Em

In the old days former Chief of Police Thomas M Burckes of Lynn, used to wear a prisoners down with bare fists and cart them to the lockup in a wheelbarrow in summer, or a sleigh in winter.

Those was no Bertillon system, so he used his camera eye to identify jailbirds' faces. The other local police forces followed, so for communication he used Uncle Sam's postal service or the telephone.

And for weapons he swung his trusty long nine or club, no matter how much "gun crazy" were the desperadoes he encountered in detective and [illegible] service.

LEWIS SCORES A.F. OF L. LEADER IN UNION ROW

Green's Threat to Suspend the Mine Group in Labor Argument Brings Caustic Attack

Washington June 6 (INS) The battle between John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and chairman of the committee for industrial organization, and William Green president of the A. F. of L. over the question of industrial vs craft organization, reached white heat today when Lewis sent a caustically worded letter to Green.

"It is inconceivable that you intend doing what your statement implies, that is, to sit with the women, under an awning on the hilltop, while the steel workers in the valley struggle in the dust and storm of industrial warfare," Lewis letter said.

He took issue with a statement issued last night by Green, the executive council of the federation would have no part in a fight to suspend the nine unions now in the bailiwick of the C.I.O. calling the nine workers' international organization in the A. F. of L.

SAYS "DEAR BILL"

Despite the hectic flavor between the two labor chiefs Lewis letter was addressed to "Dear Bill." It follows:

"I overlook the inane ineptitude of your statement published today. Perchance, you were agitated and distraught. The momentary satisfaction accruing to the employers of the steel industry as they perused your statement is also of little consequence.

"It is inconceivable that you intend doing what your statement implies.

"You are the custodian of your own honor. Nevertheless, your own union (the Mine Workers) has declared itself for a definite policy. It calls upon its loyal sons for support of that policy. The imperishable words of Stephen Decatur in Norfolk in 1816 constitute an analogy.

HONOR WAITING

"Press accounts detail, without reserve, the intent of the executives of the American Federation of Labor to suspend, on July 8, the 10 national and international unions who plan to extend aid to the workers in America's unorganized industries. You have uttered no disclaimer.

"Even so, I cannot yet believe that you would be a party to such a Brutus blow. In addition, you would destroy yourself.

"It is known to you that your shipmates on the executive council are even now planning to blot your political threats and gauntlets your official ship.

"They are cavilling among themselves over the choice of your successor when the perfidious act of separation is accomplished.

"Why not forego such company and return home to the union that suckled you, rather than court ohloquy by dwelling among its adversaries and lending them your strength?

"An honored seat at the council table awaits you if you elect to return."

50 YEARS A MINISTER

The 50th anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. D. John W. Suter, Episcopal minister, will be observed today at the Church of the Epiphany, Winchester. Dr. Suter has been rector of the church 25 years.

ENSIGN WEDS BELLE

CULMINATING a pretty Navy romance, Ensign James G. Sliney was married in New York yesterday to Miss Lorenza M. Bremner, Chicago socialite. Governor Cutley and Mrs. Edward Donnelly, a school chum of the bride, were in attendance.

Radcliffe Belle Wed to Fernald

A marriage of Harvard-Radcliffe interest which took place this afternoon at the Church of the Advent was announced yesterday.

The bride is the former Miss Elizabeth Anne Noland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Crosby Noland of Indianapolis. She was a member of the class of 1937 at Radcliffe.

The bridegroom is Bruce Hunt Fernald of Cambridge, son of Mrs. Walter Hunt Fernald and a member of the class of 1937 at Harvard.

CURLEY SPEEDS TO N. Y. RITES

New York June 6. Stricken by a heart attack while on a train speeding from the Democratic convention in Springfield, Mass., to his home in this city, James M. Curley of Massachusetts and members of his family proceeded St. Patrick's Cathedral today after a brief mass for the repose of the soul of Miss Loretta M. Bremner, Chicago socialite and fiancee of Ensign James G. Sliney.

The wedding was to have taken place this afternoon at the home of Governor Curley, but the governor's physician ordered him to bed after the heart attack. Mrs. Curley and Mrs. Edward Donnelly, a schoolmate of the bride and bridesmaid, were present.

The governor's two sons who were to act as ushers at the wedding failed to reach the church in time for the ceremony.

The marriage was performed by Rev. James F. Kelley. Miss Anne Bremner, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Thomas E. Sliney, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. A reception followed at the Hotel Pierre.

Following a honeymoon on the Isle of Capri, the young couple will live at Pensacola, Fla., where Ensign Sliney is an instructor in the naval aviation unit.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Bremner of Chicago. Ensign Sliney is a son of Mrs. Mary Sliney of Boston.

BONUS MONEY WILL KNIFE DEPRESSION, FARLEY SAYS

By THE BONUS EDITOR

Bonus billions will provide American business with the greatest impetus it has had since the 1929 crash!

Postmaster-General James A. Farley, in an exclusive interview with the Boston Sunday Advertiser, made that pleasant prediction in Symphony Hall [illegible] yesterday.

"The two billions of dollars in bonus bonds to be released by the federal government on June 15," he said, "will be the greatest shot in the arm for Business since it collapsed on that unforgettable, lamentable day, Black Thursday, seven years ago."

GREAT TURN-OVER

"The money will be turned over a number of times benefitting wholesalers, retailers, builders, tradesmen and countless other persons.

"It is difficult to estimate the tremendous amount of good this two billion dollar payment of bonus bonds to America's World War veterans is certain to accomplish.

"Payment of the bonuses bound to help the retailers. I believe many of the veterans will use part of their bonus money to purchase new clothing, furnishings for their homes, automobiles, radios and, in rarer instances, luxuries denied them during the late financial stress.

"In thousands of homes the postmaster-gen on the night of June 15 will sound the knell to depression and signalize the start of a new and brighter tomorrow for between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 World War veterans and their families throughout the nation."

POSTOFFICE READY

Postmaster General [illegible] that the post-[illegible] offers departmental [illegible] tioning to distribute bonds.

"The postoffice department," he said, "expects to make complete delivery of the bonus bonds no later than the close of the week of June 15.

"We urgently request all veterans eligible to receive bonus bonds to remain in their homes on June 15 from 5 p. m. until the postman arrives with the registered letter containing his bonus bonds. This will greatly facilitate delivery of the bonds."

New England Police Stories

On Spot in N.H.

As Told by Ace Crime Reporters

Sportsman Slain Protecting Wife

(This is the 123rd in a series of true murder-mystery stories, taken from New England police and court annals, now being published daily in the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Fred Perkins, one of the ace reporters for the American and Sunday Advertiser, relates this thrilling story "'On the Spot' in New Hampshire.")

By FRED PERKINS

Little knots of muscle tightened at the corners of the gunman's jaw. His face looked almost square, framed as it was by his upturned coat collar and down-turned hat brim.

There was a queer, shrill note in the raspy monotone of his voice, as he repeated his threats.

"Listen, wise guy, you're on the spot. Either you turn that car over to us, right here and now, or else—"

Looking into the muzzle of the leveled pistol was Vernon F. Atkins, well-to-do Concord, N. H., sportsman and auto accessories dealer.

There was no fear in his face. Only mounting rage

Behind the gunman, he could see Mrs. Atkins, held by the throat against the hallway wall by the gunman's pal.

Almost at Atkins' own elbow was his 17-year-old son Reginald peering like his father over the cold black circle of the threatening pistol muzzle

It was a time for quick thinking and quicker action.

Tried to Escape

Perhaps he deliberately chose his own life away, in a desperate effort to focus wholly upon himself this peril to which his wife and son were subjected

At any event, in one lightning-like movement, the father turned the boy to one side, then made a bold dash for the door leading from the dining room, where the hold-up was being staged, to the kitchen

Before Atkins had taken his second step, the gunman's automatic pistol was spitting death

His action had stunned and deafening between the dining room's four walls.

Young Reginal Atkins, staring horrified, saw his father's body lurch, as if a heavy fist had struck it, then, now in the gunman's arms, sag out of sight into the kitchen.

The gunman, his square face a fury mask, with eyes like slits and deep white lines running from nose to mouth corners, started to follow his victim.

Unhesitatingly, 17-year-old Reginald dove headlong, almost knocking the gunman from his feet with a perfect football block. Then, recovering himself, catlike, young Atkins jumped to the assistance of his mother, who was still locked in the gunman's pal

But neither of the gangster invaders of the Atkins home had any stomach for further killing or further violence. One of them swung a blow that sent Reginald Atkins sprawling

Then they were out the Atkins front door and were racing in flight down peaceful, residential Rumford street

Chased Fugitives

After a quick glance into the kitchen had assured them that his father must have escaped into the back yard, young Reginald, a crack middle distance runner, was away sprinting in pursuit of the fugitives.

Young Atkins lost one of his fugitives in the first few moments but he managed to keep the other in sight, off and on, as the pursuit, zigzagged crazily in a generally southward direction through the outskirts of the town.

The fugitive saw an open doorway, a doorway which looked as if it might lead into a storage warehouse or factory stockroom. He plunged into it

A few seconds later, Reginald Atkins was speaking excitedly into a telephone.

"Is this Deputy Moore?" he asked. "Say, deputy, I think I've got one of those gunmen that held up the jewelry exhibit in the Auditorium Theater. He went in the hallway, but I don't think he can get out. Will you send right down?"

At the theater, five minutes later, were Deputy City Marshall Vic Moore, his son, Officer Paul Moore, and another patrolman.

One Caught

While the two younger officers guarded the exists, Deputy Moore, gun in hand, strode into the darkened auditorium. A watchman, who had been aroused by all this activity, switched on all the theater lights, by the deputy's order

For an instant, it seemed that the big, empty interior was completely deserted. But Deputy Moore saw a curtain move suspiciously near an emergency exit.

"Come out of there or I'll shoot", he commanded.

The fugitive, however, had already managed to get a fire door open and drop down an iron stairway outside

Waiting for him was Officer Paul Moore also ready to shoot—and there was a gun in his hand.

The prisoner, taken to Concord police headquarters, said he was Carl A. Henning, 31, of Eden Court, Concord.

But the charge was murder!

Mrs. Atkins, seeking her husband had found him dead lying face down on the lawn just beyond the kitchen door.

Two bullets had struck him in the back, tearing through his body. Either wound would have been fatal, doctors said later.

Atkins Sr., had been a colorful Concord figure since pre-prohibition days when he and his partner Loren E. Currier, had been proprietors of a famous Depot street saloon which had been a rendezvous for the state's leading political, sporting characters and boxing and horse racing celebrities.

After the closing of the saloons by the 18th amendment, Atkins built one into the automobile accessories business with former State Police Warden Charles H. Rowe as a partner.

The Atkins home on Rumford street was in the heart of Concord's best residential district

If Boston or New York gunmen could come there, shoot a man down in his own dining room—and get away with it—anything might happen. Concord viewers-with-alarm told each other gloomily.

But one of Atkins' assailants, at least quite plainly had not "gotten away with it

In a very uncomfortable position indeed, was prisoner Henning in the police cell, with the shadow of the gallows dark across his barred window.

He couldn't deny ever concerning his identity, for Concord police knew him of old, had his fingerprints and his photograph on record.

Henning's Story

Henning's story, told to City Marshall George A. S. Kimball, Deputy Moore and County Solicitor Herbert L. Rainie, was as follows

"Two years ago, my brother and me got knocked off near Franklin with a load of liquor. We were using a brand new Cadillac, worth a couple of grand of any guy's money.

"There was a lower court rap in Franklin, then a heavier rap in federal court here. We didn't have dough enough to pay our fines and costs, so we go to this Atkins and we get a loan, putting up the Cadillac as security.

"Altogether, we finally owe Atkins about $800, him having put up a bond on the Cadillac and all. But, when we are ready to square it up and take back our car, we find that Atkins doesn't want to play.

"He figures he's made a good trade. All he gives us is the laugh.

"My brother's in Washington and don't care, but I'm burned up plenty. So I'm talking about this raw deal I get, and a fellow I meet in a poolroom on Washington street, Boston, says to me that he can put the fear of God in this bird, Atkins, and make him come across with the auto.

"We go to Manchester by train, and Atkins promises to meet us there, but he doesn't show up.

"So we take another train to Concord, we go to Atkins' summer camp, where the Cadillac is supposed to be. No Cady there—and no Atkins either.

Blames Another

"Next we go, pretty hot, to Atkins' house, here in Concord. My friend—I don't know whether his name is Riley or O'Brien—promises there'll be no rough stuff. But first thing he does, once we're in the door, is pull a pistol

"I shove Mr. Atkins to one side and hold her—so she won't get hurt. Riley—or O'Brien—tries to lay the law down to Atkins. But Atkins has guts. He won't even put up his hands. Then he makes a break for the door, and the guy with the gun starts pulling trigger.

"The crazy kid jumps the two of us, but we don't fight back. We just take it on the lam

"Now, I don't know where Riley—or O'Brien—is. Naw, I dunno where he lives or anything. He was just a guy I met in the poolroom.

To this story Henning stuck week after week

It could not be proved that he had carried a gun, but he was finally sent to state prison to serve six to eight years' sentence for manslaughter.

In the meantime, in the way of clues, Concord police had a hotel register and the murder gun

The register was from the famous old Phoenix hotel, where Henning and his companion, the gunman "Riley" or "O'Brien" had spent the night of Tuesday, April 16, 1923, which was the night before the murder

Henning had signed his right name. His companion had signed the name "Lester Riley."

Police were convinced that "Lester Riley" was an alias. But they had the signature photographed, just the same. They were glad to have a sample of the alleged killer's handwriting.

The murder gun, a German model automatic pistol, was found along the route the killer had taken in his flight.

Police Officer J. Edward Silva, now a captain, was the fingerprint expert of the Concord force. He made a careful study of the weapon. Then took it and his photographs and measurements to Boston police headquarters where he checked his discoveries with the Boston files

Knew the Gunman

In general charge of the murder investigating was County Solicitor Herbert L. Rainie, a skillful prosecutor, a singer and musician of state-wide renown and one of the keenest legal brains in New England.

Almost ten months later, on Jan 7, 1924, the trap was set and sprung A squad of police officers from the old City Hall avenue station, Boston, went to Beachland avenue, Revere, and there arrested Leo A Roach, 27 and married, who said he was in the trucking business

Brought back to the Boston station house and placed in a lineup of 10 persons, Roach was identified first by young Reginald Atkins then by Henning, then by Police Sergeant Christopher T Wallace of Concord, an eagle-eyed veteran who had seen Henning and Roach on the street together in Concord and had spotted them instantly as suspicious strangers

To afford him opportunity to make the identification, Henning had been taken to Boston from the state prison at Concord

He didn't need to, in his role as complainant and first picked from the lineup a Boston newspaperman, Hayes McCormack

"Quit your kidding, Henning," snapped an officer.

White-faced, Henning jerked a thumb at Roach

"That's him," he asserted

On hand to question the prisoner were County Solicitor Rainie, Deputy Moore and other New Hampshire officers

Roach's story was simple

"I was never in Concord, N. H., in my life. Never saw the place and don't want to. Never heard of this man Atkins."

To Concord, N. H., he went, however

And he heard plenty about Atkins.

Roach on Trial

Roach's trial began May 12, 1924 in Merrimack County Superior Court at Concord

Strong points of the state's case included testimony of handwriting experts, positively declaring the Phoenix hotel register signature "Lester Riley" to be in Roach's penmanship; included identification of the accused by Reginald Atkins Police Sergeant Wallace and Henning; and included testimony to the fact that Roach, when arrested had been wearing a blue serge suit exactly corresponding to a suit described by the Atkinses as having been worn by the murderer.

In Roach's defense members of his family and other Boston witnesses attempted to build up an alibi. Roach's relatives all testified to having arranged a birthday party for him on April 10, the day before the murder

In rebuttal the state produced city of Boston records proving Roach's name had been born April 9 not April 10

Roach's relatives and two nurses from the Carney Hospital, Boston testified that on April 11, the murder day, Roach was at the hospital to visit his brother, William, who was there for an appendicitis operation

And a Boston clothing store salesman took him to better task, to swear that he sold the match used about blue serge suit to Roach on May 1923 or about a month after the murder

Not to be swayed however by alibis and seeming contradictions, the hard-headed Concord County jury which held R fate in its hands

The handwriting evidence prepared under the supervision of County Attorney Rainie, was impressive

After an all night deliberation the jury found Roach guilty of second degree murder

Chief Justice Oliver W. Branch imposed sentence of life imprisonment

In the courtroom was Mrs. Atkins, widow of the slain sportsman. She was present, one of the few persons present who had known things about the justice of the verdict. For Mrs. Atkins knew Roach's arrest had been unable to identify him

Knots Appear

She'd never, so long as she lived, forget the square, square features, with the knotted muscles at the jaw corners. The slitted eyes. The white lines from nose to mouth

She hadn't seen that forbidding countenance an instant, however, defendant Leo Roach sank paralyzed and imperturbable sitting in the prisoner's dock.

But, when Roach faces the judge, heard himself sentenced to state prison for life he couldn't lose his composure for which he had fought so long and so hard

"You can't do this to me," he screamed. "I won't be framed and I won't be railroaded! Haven't I any appeal from this kind of injustice? I want new lawyers! These lawyers went back on me!"

His voice was a raspy monotone with a queer note in it. Little knots of muscle stood out at the corners of his jaw, making his face look almost square. There were white lines, like scars, from nose to mouth corners

As guards subdued Roach and led him away, Mrs. Atkins turned to County Solicitor Rainie

"I could identify that man now," she said, "that's the way he looked when he pointed his gun at my head. Is it too late for me to identify him?"

It WAS too late, in that trial And Roach never got another

Maybe he didn't get very far—remembering that, sometimes, they hang men for murder in New Hampshire.

Nor has he, to this day ever asked for a pardon, according to County Solicitor Rainie'

Hold-Up Victim

VERNON F. ATKINS, well-to-do sportsman, killed by assassin's gun.

ONE manicure with this new, perfected Glazo will change your whole idea of nail polish.

Far superior to old-type formulas, new Glazo wears several extra days. Its fast-to-approved colors richer in lustre, never dull or peel. Easier to apply, it never clogs the brush. And, with ordinary care, new Glazo will not thicken in the bottle.

It's new
it's perfect GLAZO
JUST 20 CENTS...

INTENSELY interesting articles on popular science appear regularly in this and other issues of THE AMERICAN WEEKLY. Don't miss them if you want to be well informed of scientific progress!

Let me tell you about this "MILLIONAIRE'S DISH" that costs less than 3¢ a portion

WE [illegible] in [illegible] But if we had [illegible] thing we could [illegible] better than [illegible] Spaghetti. Its [illegible] sauce is the most delicious [illegible] tasted — just the kind you'd expect in high priced chef to make. The seasoning is perfect! Yet this marvelous dish costs almost next-to-nothing. You save money serving it and it's a treat every time."

The thrifty woman's standby

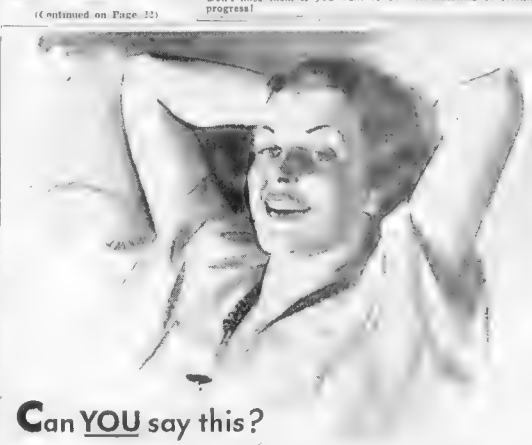
Franco-American's zestful flavor "dresses up" the simplest meal. Inexpensive meat dishes take on new luxury. Left-overs acquire a lordly air. And you never miss meat at lunch [illegible] entrée [illegible] dish of Franco-American in the table.

How different it tastes!

Franco-American isn't the [illegible] cooked spaghetti [illegible] with extra good- [illegible] — because made with clever, different ingredients! "Far better than I could ever make," women say.

Yet a can of Franco-American, all ready to heat and serve, is usually no more than ten cents, less than 3¢ a portion. It would cost you more to prepare spaghetti at home, buy all your ingredients and cook them. Think of the work you're saved, too. Get Franco-American today.

MADE BY THE MAKERS OF CAMPBELL'S SOUPS



Can YOU say this?

"I'm holding my own!"

"YOU women who are 30 or over—can you look yourself straight in the eye and say truthfully, 'I'm holding my own'?" asks Frances Ingram, noted beauty expert.

"If you can, you should be congratulated. For you have taken good care of your good looks.

"But if you cannot say it, you should be asked why you have neglected the most important things in your life.

"If your face shows that time is using the better of you too soon, do something about it! You can, you know.

The trouble with so many of our skins is that as we grow older Nature reduces her supply of the natural protecting oils with which she keeps them fine and supple when we are young.

Then blemishes appear. Hard lines, loose folds; drawn, dry skin; crepey texture; large, coarse pores. No tone, no firmness.

These "young" oils must be restored.

It isn't hard; it requires no expensive beauty treatments; no elaborate set of [illegible]. You can [illegible] the [illegible] Frances Ingram, 636 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Certified retail value
$3.00 A DOZEN

* BURNETT'S LIQUID-MIX is America's favorite dessert—ice cream—in a delicious, easy-to-make form. It is the result of three years of experimenting with Burnett's famous flavors, of testing and tasting and presenting the newest product of the makers of Burnett's Pure Vanilla to housewives in various Eastern and West Coast cities. In other words, it's just the best ice cream mix that can be made by anybody, anywhere.

IT'S EASY TO USE

To make real home-made ice cream with Burnett's Liquid-Mix, here's all you have to do. Take a can of any one of the eight delicious flavors, mix it with milk and cream and set it in the ice tray of your automatic refrigerator. That's all! No cooking muss, no stirring in the trays. And if you live in a section where good cream is expensive or hard to obtain, use evaporated milk or Burnett Sherbets (Raspberry, Lime, Orange), used with fresh or evaporated milk, or with water only, to make delicious sparkling water ices—the perfect summer dessert.

OUR INTRODUCTORY OFFER

Just a word more about the Wallace Guaranteed Silverware you receive. Special Southern Shortening works new wonders in Famous Northern Recipes

JEWEL SPECIAL-BLEND SHORTENING GIVES BETTER RESULTS THAN THE COSTLIEST TYPES—YET IT SELLS FOR 3¢ TO 6¢ LESS!

As a well-known radio Home Economics Expert, former Food Editor of a leading women's magazine—the Pictorial Review, Miss Enloe is one of a group of Northern authorities whom Swift has asked to try Jewel, the Southern Special Blend Shortening. Miss Enloe tried it in some of her most famous recipes (see those at the right) and is much impressed with the results. Her report is summarized on this page. Jewel definitely improved her dishes in several specific ways.

ASK FOR JEWEL BY NAME!

Preferred to the Costliest Shortenings

In Jewel, Vegetable fat is given remarkable new shortening qualities by Swift's Special blending of it with other Vegetable cooking fats

MORE TENDER baked foods . . . far faster creaming . . . a high smoke point—because of these practical advantages women throughout the South have long preferred Jewel to the costliest shortenings.

Now Northern women too are discovering the remarkable qualities of this Southern Special Blend Shortening. Introduced in the North only a few months ago, Jewel is already scoring an unusual success in city after city.

To demonstrate Jewel's advantages most dramatically, Swift has asked the cooperation of a group of distinguished Northern cooking authorities, among them Miss Enloe of New York. These experts were asked to try Jewel in their most famous recipes. They report, without exception, that with Jewel their recipes give definitely better results. They find that pastry and other baked foods are lighter and more tender . . . that cakes are finer in texture.

A delicate blend of vegetable fat with other bland cooking fats, Jewel has unique shortening properties. Actual tests show that Jewel, the Southern Special-Blend Shortening, gives better results than the costliest types. Yet it sells for 3¢ to 6¢ less!

your special Jewel Shortening

Sift and measure 2 cups flour with 4 tsps. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tbsp. sugar. Cut in 6 tbsps. Jewel shortening until mixture consists of coarse meal. Add ¼ cup milk gradually, stirring until dough is formed. Divide dough in half. Roll out with rolling pin on floured board to ⅛ inch thick. Cut with cutter. Bake for 5 minutes in hot oven (450°F.). When done, split crust while warm, crushed, sweetened strawberries between and top with whipped cream. Serve at once.

Sift flour, measure and sift again 3 times with salt. Cream Jewel thoroughly and add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add vanilla and beat. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift baking powder with flour 3 times and add alternately with milk, a little at a time, beating well after each addition. Pour batter into 2 greased and floured layer cake pans and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 25 minutes. Remove from pans and cool on cake rack. Put layers together with jelly and cover with whipped cream. Decorate with berries.

DISHES WITH DIVIDENDS OF VIGOROUS HEALTH!

A Whole Half-Dozen Ways to Give Zest and "Balance" to Summer Meals... 200 More in Sunkist's Free Booklet

IF you were invited to dinner at Ida Lupino's—in fact, if you were the guest of any star in Hollywood—chances are you would have at least one orange serving before the meal was over!

So from this popular Paramount player's file of favorites—these six recipes are chosen for you. Several you will enjoy making right now—just from the pictures! But for details, send for Sunkist's complete collection of more than 200 dishes with dividends of vigorous health.

How Oranges Aid Health

Fresh orange juice supplies you richly with all four of the recognized protective food essentials—vitamins C, A and B, and calcium.

Thus authorities now advise large glassfuls twice each day—at breakfast and again at 4 o'clock.

The second glass in mid-afternoon restores energy, helps rid the tissues of fatigue poisons, carries you through the before-dinner hours refreshed and high-spirited.

And two daily glasses of fresh orange juice, each with half a lemon, reduced gum troubles 83% and lessened tooth decay 57% in a 3½-year research study.

For your two glasses a day and for your recipes, be sure you get Sunkist California Oranges. The Valencias, now in season, are wonderfully sweet and juicy. Look for the name on the skin and tissue wrapper of every orange.

CHAPTER XII.

A Voice in the Crowd.

GARCION and Carter were making their slow way across the lobby of the Opera. It had been a gala night—a benefit for which the great theatre had been reopened long after the end of the season.

"Enjoy it, Pierre?" asked the young American.

"Well enough," returned his friend, "but I am not enough of a chauvinist to say it was perfect. After all, the Italians sing Verdi better than the French."

"Naturally — but being a Frenchman, you shouldn't say so."

Carter nodded to a friend across several heads. The perfumed, bare-shouldered throng of women made a dazzling spectacle in the ornate setting of the foyer, their somberly-garbed escorts serving to emphasize the brilliance of their gowns, the magnificence of their jewels. What a chance for a pickpocket in such a crush, he thought.

"Let's drop in at—" Garcion broke off his sentence to stare at his friend. For Carter had halted abruptly and was peering back over his shoulder, a look of amazement in his eyes. His action brought to a sudden halt a phalanx of impatient people, who glanced aggrievedly at the tall American.

"Come on, Gran," protested Garcion, catching his arm.

Carter jerked his arm away and began plowing a veritable furrow through the close packed throng, amid a shower of protests and acid comments on "foreign manners" which he heeded not in the least.

Garcion, amazed, stuck to his heels.

Then Carter stopped uncertainly, and from the vantage of his six-foot-one, stared about him helplessly.

The detective, at a complete loss to understand such callous unconcern for other people's comfort, so at variance with the usual courtesy of his friend, spoke again sharply.

"What's the matter with you, Gran?" he cried.

Carter turned and shrugged hopelessly.

"No use!" he said bitterly. "What a chance—and I have lost it."

With no other explanation, he joined the outflowing tide, and a moment later the two men were standing on the sidewalk of the Place de l'Opera.

At the curb, Garcion saw Harroush about to climb into his car. As he watched, the financier stopped and clapped his right hand to his left arm, as though it hurt him. Then he peered curiously around him. A milling crowd, seeking cars and taxis, pushed against him.

The financier did not see a thin, ferret-faced little man who the instant before had dodged behind a tall opera-goer. If he had, it would have meant nothing to him. He did not know Gandron! Harroush spoke to his chauffeur and clambered in. The car moved off and the Inspector turned back to Carter.

"I'll complete my sentence begun awhile ago, Gran," he said. "Let's drop in at Maxim's for a sandwich and a beer."

Carter nodded absently and they set off down the Boulevard des Italiens.

Neither spoke till they were seated at a small table in Maxims.

"Look here, Gran," remarked Garcion suddenly. "What the devil did you see back there at the Opera to make you forget your manners and everything else all of a sudden?"

"My manners?" asked Carter, coming out of a brown study with an evident effort.

"Didn't you ever hear it was bad manners to walk on people's toes, dig your elbows in their ribs and jostle their tall hats sideways?" inquired Garcion, smiling.

"Did I do that?" and the Inspector realized that his friend's question was perfectly sincere.

"Enough people told you so. Didn't you even hear them? And you certainly haven't been drinking! What's the explanation? The exhibition was entertaining—for anyone behind you—but if you're given to it regularly, I'd prefer not to be your keeper the next time," returned Garcion dryly.

"By Jove, I'm sorry, Pierre—all my apologies old man," cried the young attache. "I didn't realize—after I'd heard that voice!"

"Heard a voice! That's all anyone could hear in that mob—chattering to right and gossiping to left."

"Yes, but there was a momentary lull. Pierre—and in that half-second, I heard a voice somewhere behind me, and I tried to find it—you say I stepped on people?"

"Rather!" laughed Garcion. "Whose voice was it that could turn the correct Granville Carter into a bull in a China shop at a mere word?"

"That's it, Pierre—I don't know!" and something in Carter's voice, an almost tragic note, made his friend look at him curiously.

"All right, Gran, let's forget it. I can see you'd rather not talk about it any more. Here come those sandwiches," said the Inspector as a waiter bore refreshment to their table.

"Thanks, Pierre," returned Carter simply. "Some day, perhaps, I can tell you."

Garcion wondered over the matter far more than he cared to show. How much more sharp would have been his interest had he known that the voice that Carter had recognized, belonged beyond the faintest doubt to L'Inconnue! Carter had heard it—heard those unforgettable tones clearly somewhere behind him in that close packed throng.

His fingers clenched as he thought of it. Some one of those beautiful women was she! He had been within a few feet of her—had probably actually seen her—and he had not known which one she was!

* * *

As Ispan Harroush's butler let his master into the great house in the Avenue Henri Martin he handed him a square envelope. It was sealed and bore as superscription the single typewritten word "Urgent."

"What's this?" growled Harroush.

"I do not know, sir," returned the man. "It came a half hour ago."

"Who brought it?"

"I couldn't say, sir."

"Why not, you idiot?" demanded the financier.

The butler was unhappy, evidently the great Harroush was in one of his ugly moods. "The bell rang, sir," he stammered. "I answered it at once, sir—but there was no one in sight—only this envelope Thrust under the door!"

Harroush glared at him, then turned on his heel.

"Bring me a pint of champagne," he said.

Alone in his study, he broke the seal.

As he read, his eyes dilated. There were only a half dozen typewritten lines, with no date, address or signature. Only a half dozen lines, yet beads of sweat stood on Harroush's brow as he read the last word. The note dropped unheeded to his desk. Then his right hand sought his left arm, just above the elbow.

Suddenly, with a hoarse cry, he stood up and tore off his evening coat. With fingers that shook he tried to roll up the left sleeve of his shirt. The cuff-link was hard to undo—Harroush ripped the cuff off. Then stared at his bare arm. Yes, there it was!

Two or three inches above the elbow a tiny mark stood out on the yellowish skin, surrounded by a slight discoloration. Harroush touched the spot gingerly and winced.

His mind raced feverishly back to the moment he had felt a slight sharp sting in his arm just as he was getting into his limousine in front of the Opera. A hypodermic needle! The devils!

The butler entered and stopped short at sight of Harroush.

"Open that bottle—do you hear?" The voice of Harroush was almost a croak. "And be quick about it!"

The servant hastened to obey. "Now get out!" cried Harroush. He drained his glass and refilled it clumsily. Sitting down at his desk he picked up the note again.

It read, with no preamble:

"You have had a poison injected into your arm—a newly discovered drug from Java. It will kill you in eight days. There is no antidote. If this is taken within three days you will live. The price is a million francs. Have this amount in your study Monday evening at eleven o'clock and you will receive further instructions."

Harroush glanced about him. The room was magnificently panelled in San Domingo white mahogany. Under foot lay priceless rugs. The very desk at which he sat was worth enough to keep a modest family for years.

All this magnificence was his and much, much more. And yet for was helpless—doomed as surely as if his hands were bound behind his back and his fat neck lying in the notch of the guillotine.

Across his mind flashed a picture of Moreau's face when that trusting fool had come to plead with him to save him. Moreau whose modest fortune had gone to swell the rising tide of Harroush's riches. He remembered the look in Moreau's eyes as he went out—to kill himself. There was Des Ormes, too—how many more?

No—no! He mustn't think of them—he was the great Harroush! Business was a hard game. Was it his fault that he had been shrewd enough to survive and flourish when lesser men, more scrupulous men, had perished?

There surely must be some way out.

The Truth About Soap Shampoos

1. This photograph shows bacteria and dandruff-germs, that are not removed by ordinary soap shampoo.

2. All bacteria, dandruff and other foreign matter removed, gently destroyed and removed by the Fitch Shampoo.

THERE is a simple, easy way to rid yourself of dandruff with the very first application. All that is necessary is to use a shampoo that completely dissolves dandruff and then washes it away.

Repeated laboratory, as well as practical, tests show that ordinary shampoos will not dissolve dandruff. Fitch's Dandruff Remover Shampoo dissolves every speck of dandruff instantly—under a money-back guarantee—and then washes it away. It rinses clean in hard or soft water. Equally as good for blondes as brunettes. Try it today! On sale at all druggists, barber shops, beauty shops and toilet goods counters.

After and between Fitch Shampoos, Fitch's Ideal Hair Tonic is the ideal preparation to stimulate the hair roots and give new life, luster and beauty to your hair.

DO YOU KNOW that The American Weekly prints more Scriptural stories in a year than all the other non-sectarian magazines combined?

"Almost Unbelievable!
The way my skin improved"

"My face, shoulders and back were disfigured by sore, itchy, pimply spots. I found that clogged pores caused the trouble, and I began to use Resinol Soap to get rid of the pore impurities—and Resinol Ointment to soothe and help heal the broken out places. After the first treatment the soreness was relieved. Now my skin is clear, but to help keep it that way, I use Resinol Soap daily, and Resinol Ointment for irritations." At all druggists.

Serve It With Sculptured Sardines

By Mrs. Christine Frederick,
The Distinguished Authority on Household Efficiency.

SQUARE, round and oval, the sardine tin emerges to occupy top place on the grocery counter as the fish of the Summer picnic season. But the sardine plays an important rolé in the Summer menu as well. Too few hostesses realize the real culinary points which the sardine may supply as a genuine cooking ingredient.

Because of its salty, smoked flavor it combines well with all more bland foods, among them such vegetables as spinach, tomatoes, corn, etc. Sardines with eggs is another combination that men seem keen to be served. Indeed, the association of hard-boiled eggs and sardines is quite the kitchen classic!

Sardines will lend to the Summer salad a note of weight and food value, since they are concentrated bits of sunshine-rayed protein. In combination with more crisp materials such as lettuce, cress, tomatoes, etc., the sardine gives just enough heartiness for the hurry-up lunch, the home sandwich snack, etc.

When lightly affected by heat, as by pan-heating or broiling, the sardine's smoked flavor is more deliciously pronounced. Heat a small skillet without any grease and carefully lay in the boned sardines. Allow to remain on the fire just long enough to heat through thoroughly.

Another food with which sardines combine in a most pleasing manner is cheese. There are many delicious recipes for cheese-sardine specialties, after the manner of a cheese rarebit. It is the smoked flavor of the sardine, which, like bacon, gives the touch of zest and contrast to cheese dishes. Old cheese of the Cheddar, Stilton, and regular store or brick American type are best suited to such recipes.

Lemon and lemon juice—and also lime juice—are the perfect astringents to this somewhat oily tidbit. Unless packed in pure olive oil, allow the sardines to be washed or rinsed off with quite warm or hot water, quickly to remove the packing oil. Then drain and marinate in a freshly squeezed lemon and olive oil dressing to which either a dash of mustard or tomato catchup is added.

Last, the shape, design or pattern of the sardine, call it what you will, makes an admirable garnish. These slender shivers are a good contrast in form with many dishes like spinach, omelet, scrambled eggs, etc., which in themselves are shapeless. Like perfect berries on the top of the shortcake, sardines are ideal for garnishing uses.

Serve it with sardines if you wish a successful Summer of salads and sandwiches! Investigate various types and experiment with all brands; some suit one kind of recipe, others have special values in hot weather menus. Above all, use sardines as main foods, not merely accessories or eaten out of hand from their tin.

Washday Salad: Eight to 12 sardines, 4 small boiled potatoes, 2 hardboiled eggs, 8 stuffed olives, 3 tablespoons olive oil, 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar, 1 tablespoon onion juice, salt, pepper, 1 tablespoon capers, lettuce or watercress. Skin and bone sardines and cut into neat sections. Chop eggs coarsely. Combine oil, vinegar, onion juice, salt, pepper and capers, and blend well. Pour over other mixed ingredients. Chill. Serve on lettuce or cress. Serves 4.

Spinach with Sardines: Two pounds spinach, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon onion juice, ½ cup cream or rich milk, salt, pepper, 12 sardines, 2 hardboiled eggs, 2 tablespoons additional butter, fancy lemon ring garnish. Cook spinach quickly in only its own wetted leaves, and drain. Season with butter, onion juice, cream, salt and pepper, and beat up light. Arrange on glass baking dish. Arrange skinned and boned sardines around base of dish and slice eggs in overlapping sections on top. Brush over with the additional butter, melted. Place in oven or under broiler flame for 5 minutes to brown. Garnish with fancy lemon rings and serve immediately. Serves 4

Sardine Snacks: Four slices bread, 2 tablespoons butter, ¾ cup sharp cheese grated, 8 large or 16 small sardines, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1 tablespoon sardine oil, paprika, heart lettuce, thinly sliced cucumbers, French dressing seasoned with pinch of mustard. Toast bread and butter it, then cut into triangles. Arrange on baking tin. Sprinkle toast sections thickly with cheese, and place one or two sardines on top. Brush with blended oil, lemon and onion juice, and dust with paprika. Brown under broiler flame for 4 minutes or until cheese begins to puff. Serve immediately on small plates garnished with lettuce hearts and 3 or 4 thin chilled cucumber slices dipped in mustard French dressing. Serves 4.

Sardine Omelet: Use any usual omelet recipe. Have 8 to 12 sardines skinned, boned and boiled in skillet. Have prepared a spicy tomato sauce, or use 1 can tomato soup puree. Prepare omelet, pour over heated tomato sauce and garnish with circle of sardines around omelet.

Savory Sardine and Potato Salad: Four to 6 large sardines, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 scant teaspoon salt, 1 teapoon sugar, 1 tablespoon onion juice, 4 black peppercorns, 4 nasturtium pods (or capers), 2 whole cloves, bit bayleaf, ¾ cup olive oil, ¾ cup thick sour cream; yolks 4 hard-boiled eggs, lettuce, potato salad. Rinse sardines, skin, bone, and arrange opened halves in center of platter. Chill. Blend vinegar, salt, sugar, onion juice, peppercorns, nasturtium, whole cloves, and bayleaf with olive oil and stand to chill several hours. Mash hard yolks to a paste and slowly blend in olive oil (drained from spices) beating until creamy. Add sour cream and continue beating. Pour over fish. Surround with border of any usual potato salad and garnish with lettuce and additional capers or minced green pepper. Serves 4 to 6.

Sardine Sandwich Paste: Eight large or 12 small boneless sardines, 1 tablespoon onion juice, 1 slice stale bread soaked in ¼ cup hot milk, 1 chopped hardboiled egg, black pepper, 2 tablespoons malt vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 tablespoons melted butter. Drain sardines and chop. Combine with all other ingredients, mashing and beating to a smooth paste. Pack into glass jar and chill until required. Soften with a little oil or lemon juice before spreading on bread. Makes about ½ cup paste. Double or increase as desired.

Maine Baked Lobster.

PLUNGE live lobsters (weighing about 1 pound each) in boiling salted water and cover closely. Boil 15 minutes from the time they begin boiling. Remove and place on backs to cool. Remove large claws and inside ones and remove lobster meat carefully. Split bodies down the middle with a sharp knife and remove meat. Clean out the upper portion of the body, reserving the green meat. Put meat from bodies, green meat, and a finely cut onion through meat grinder. Mix with cracker or bread crumbs seasoned with melted butter. Return to shells, cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a moderately hot oven about 20 minutes. Serve with meat saved from large lobster claws. Garnish with crisp sprigs of parsley.

Halibut Newburg.

MELT 2 tablespoons butter and add 2 cups cooked halibut flakes. Stir with a fork until hot. Add a few grains pepper, a few grains salt, a grating of nutmeg and ½ cup sherry wine. Mix lightly. Stir in 4 beaten egg yolks mixed with 1 cup cream and stir until egg is set. Serve immediately.

Tea Room "Hurry Up" Cake.

CREAM ½ cup butter and add 1 cup sugar. Add 2 sliced bananas and blend. Add 2 eggs and beat well after each addition. Add 2½ cups cake flour sifted with ½ teaspoon salt, 2½ teaspoons baking powder and 3 tablespoons cocoa alternately with 1 cup milk. Bake in three buttered and floured cake pans in a moderately hot oven, or at about 375 degrees, 15 or 20 minutes. Invert on wire cake cooler. Put together and cover when cold with the following frosting: Wash and cream 6 tablespoons butter. Add 1 cup sifted powdered sugar gradually, beating thoroughly. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla and 2½ ounces chocolate, melted over hot water. Gradually beat in 2 cups sifted powdered sugar. Dilute with 2 tablespoons milk, orange juice or cold coffee.

Chicken Mousse.

PUT ½ cup raw chicken breast through the food chopper. Add slightly beaten white of 1 egg, ½ cup thin cream, a few grains salt, a few grains pepper and a little paprika. Blend well. Mix chopped chicken, 1 slightly beaten egg yolk and ½ cup thick cream, beaten stiff. Combine the two mixtures. Turn into buttered mold. Set in a pan of hot water, cover with oiled paper and bake in a moderate oven at about 375 degrees F. until delicately firm. Turn out on a platter and surround with well seasoned Bechamel sauce.

Apple Snow.

PARE, quarter and core 3 or 4 tart apples. Steam until soft. Press through sieve. To ¾ cup of the apple pulp add powdered sugar to taste. Beat 3 egg whites until stiff and gradually fold in the apple pulp. Pile lightly on glass dish, chill and serve with cream or without boiled custard.

Layer Cake Is at Its Best With Ice Cream

By Mary Lee Swann,
The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Chocolate Cake.

CREAM 1 cup butter and gradually add 2 cups sifted sugar. Beat until smooth and creamy. Add 5 well beaten eggs and mix well. Add 4 ounces chocolate, melted over hot water, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix and sift 2 cups sifted flour and 1 teaspoon soda and add alternately with 1 cup buttermilk to the first mixture. Turn into two buttered layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven. Put together and cover with chocolate frosting.

Brown Sugar Frosting.

PUT 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar, a few grains salt and ¼ cup water in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary beater and cook 7 minutes or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from heat, add 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Add ⅔ cup blanched, toasted and chopped almonds.

Delicious Chocolate Filling.

MELT ½ pound unsweetened chocolate over hot water. Beat 4 egg yolks until light, add 3 cups sugar, 1 cup milk and 2 tablespoons butter. Cook over heat, stirring constantly, and let it boil 1 minute. Remove from heat, add the melted chocolate and 2 teaspoons vanilla, cool until lukewarm, beat well and spread.

Lemon Filling (Easy).

MIX 2 teaspoons cornstarch, a few grains salt, 6 tablespoons sugar and ½ tablespoon grated zest of lemon. Add ½ cup lemon juice and ½ cup water and cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add the cooked mixture slowly to 4 beaten egg yolks. Return to double boiler and cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until egg is set (2 or 3 minutes). Cool and spread.

Frangipani Cream Filling (Quick).

MIX and sift ⅔ cup powdered sugar and ⅓ cup flour. Add 2 egg yolks and 1 whole egg, slightly beaten, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup hot milk slowly, beating constantly, and cook over hot water 15 minutes, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Then stir occasionally. Add 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons dried and rolled macaroons, ½ teaspoon vanilla and ½ teaspoon lemon extract.

Economy Summer Frosting.

COMBINE 2 cups sugar and 1 cup sour cream and boil until mixture forms a soft ball when tested in cold water. Remove from heat and let stand until lukewarm. Beat until creamy. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and ½ cup broken nut meats. Spread quickly.

Orange Butter Frosting.

ADD grated zest of 1 orange and grated zest of ½ lemon to ¼ cup orange juice and let stand 15 minutes. Strain and set aside. Mix 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 egg yolk, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons creamed butter and 3 cups sifted powdered sugar. Add the strained orange juice gradually, beating constantly.

Mashed Potato Chocolate Cake.

HAVE ready 1 cup mashed potatoes, beaten until light. Cream ¾ cup butter, add 2 cups sugar gradually and 2 ounces chocolate, melted over hot water. Beat 4 egg yolks until light and beat into the mashed potatoes. Combine mixtures. Mix and sift 2½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 teaspoons baking powder. Add alternately with ½ cup milk to the butter mixture. Add 1 cup broken nut meats, mix lightly and fold in 4 stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into buttered and floured cake pans and bake in a moderate oven. Put together and cover with white mountain frosting, chocolate caramel icing or fudge frosting.

Fluffy Mocha Frosting.

CREAM ½ cup butter. Mix and sift 4 cups sifted powdered sugar, 2½ tablespoons cocoa and ½ teaspoon salt. Add to butter gradually, adding ½ cup strong cold coffee as needed. Flavor with 1 teaspoon vanilla. Spread between and on top of cake. Sprinkle, if you like, with 1 cup broken walnuts (plain or toasted).

Bittersweet Frosting.

MELT 8 ounces chocolate in double boiler over hot water. Mix 1 cup sugar and ⅔ cup water and bring to boiling point. Cool until lukewarm. Add to chocolate gradually, blending carefully. Cool, stirring occasionally.

White Layer Cake.

CREAM 1 cup butter and add 2 cups sifted granulated sugar gradually. Mix and sift 3 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt and sift again several times. Add alternately with 1 cup milk to the butter mixture. Add a few drops vanilla and a few drops orange extract and beat well. Fold in 6 stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into buttered and floured layer cake pans and bake in a moderate oven. Put together and cover with any desired frosting.

Yellow Layer Cake.

CREAM 1 cup butter and add 2 cups sifted granulated sugar gradually. Add 11 well beaten egg yolks and the grated zest of 1 lemon. Mix and sift 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar and ½ teaspoon soda. Sift several times. Add dry ingredients alternately with 1 cup milk to the first mixture. Turn into buttered and floured layer cake pans and bake in moderate oven.

Pastel Jelly Topping.

PLACE ½ cup any bright colored tart jelly in bowl and set over hot water. Add 1 unbeaten egg white and a few grains salt and beat with egg beater until jelly is free from lumps. Remove from heat and continue beating until mixture is stiff enough to stand in peaks. Spread on cake, garnish with bits of clear jelly, and serve immediately.

TINTS AND DYES

THE GREATEST BOOK of knowledge in the world is a scrap-book containing the Biblical, scientific, art, hygienic and domestic science articles and illustrations published regularly in this and other issues of The American Weekly. Why not start one for home and school use?

WHEN I SAY WHITE I mean WHITE!

NOT DINGY—not yellow—not "fairly white" but a WHITE white that makes you proud. That's how white cottons and linens look when washed the Clorox way. A little Clorox banishes ordinary stains and dinginess in the regular laundering process. A slightly stronger solution takes out stubborn stains—even scorch and mildew.

And that's not all—when you use Clorox your wash is hygienically clean, for Clorox deodorizes and disinfects as it bleaches and removes stains. Think what this means when there are baby clothes, germ-laden handkerchiefs, towels, table and bed linens in the wash. The hygienic cleansing of Clorox is not limited to laundry. It disinfects, deodorizes and removes stains from refrigerators, food containers, drainboards, sinks, bathtubs, basins, toilet bowls, tile, linoleum, sickroom utensils, garbage receptacles.

You'll be amazed to learn the number of ways that Clorox can help you. The label lists many important household and personal uses. Clorox is concentrated for economy. Always order by name. There's only one Clorox.
